A New Era For Pennsylvania Agriculture?

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — To applause muffled by the gloves of a crowd struggling to stay warm, Ed Rendell took the oath of Pennsylvania governor and delivered his inaugural speech in an outdoor ceremony at the Capitol here Tuesday.

"We must begin to believe again that Pennsylvania's best days are ahead of us," Rendell said. "The time has come for Pennsylvania to dream of a better future and ask 'Why not?'"

Rendell was sworn in by his wife Marjorie, a judge with the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

Typically administered by a Pennsylvania Supreme Justice, the swearing-in represented just one of several nontraditional aspects of the ceremony.

In what Rendell supporters said demonstrated his eagerness to go to work governing MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — To help dairy producers and their families direct their future, presenters teamed up to address timely topics in several seminars this week.

The meetings, conducted in Chambersburg, Gratz, Manheim, and southern Lancaster County, drew 10-20 people each time, according to extension agent Beth Grove.

Ron Bare, financial adviser, Bare Financial Services, Atglen, opened the meeting in Lancaster. He discussed farm preservation, which involves not just land, he said.

"To me, I think farm preservation is not only preserving our ground through easement, but also making sure our farms are profitable now, and then for future generations," said Bare.

"If you take the time to do the planning, you can accomplish your goals," he said. Planning includes having a good sound business plan, estate plan, and retirement plan, according to Bare.

Bare recommends beginning financial planning with writing down specific goals and intentions "to build the master plan," then thinking about unique circumstances and considering any possible problems that could get in the way of goals.

In addition, "family dynamics is probably the biggest challenge you'll have to overcome," said Bare. He believes communication is paramount to heading off problems and making farm transfer smoother.

Bare discussed business structure (sole proprietorship, limited liability corporation, or partnership) in handing down a farm. If non-farm siblings are involved, farm owners should "be fair but not necessarily 100 percent equal," he said.

If a sibling has been working on a farm, then if they get the farm the other siblings could possibly get other assets or money from preserving the farm. The transfer does not need to be a dollar-for-dollar distribution, said Bare.

Owners should also think about retirement planning, and how to transfer the MILLVILLE (Columbia Co.) — Dennis Wolff admits he'll have some things to learn in his new job as Pennsylvania ag secretary.

"I think I have a pretty good understanding of agriculture," Wolff said in an interview Wednesday at his home on Pen-Col Farms, Columbia County. "But you have to remember, the day before yesterday I was a dairy farmer — today I'm the secretary of agriculture."

Wolff said he was first approached last November by some members of Pennsylvania's agricultural community who encouraged him to consider the post.

While he has spent his life so far in production agriculture and building a successful international business in Holstein genetics, Wolff is no stranger to the workings of gov-

Billies sold mixed as well, although mostly steady. Wethers sold 1.00 to 6.00 higher in active trading. The quality of the entire run was very mixed, with mostly lower quality goats on offer. However, due to the light receipts, buyers had no choice but to procure the lesser quality stock to try and fill their orders. All goats are sold on a per head basis, with estimated weights. Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold 50-1.00 higher on a run that included around 245 head. Prices continue to remain pretty firm at the Vintage Sales Stables, not slipping much off 80.00 for the right kind. Of course, the stock that was over-finished or too heavy took a small hit. Bidding was fairly active throughout the sale, especially since buyers were not able to pick and choose due to the light numbers, therefore, if they were close they went on the truck. Slaughter Holstein steers and beef heifers were not tested due to the light Tuesday run. Slaughter cows sold firm to .50 higher, with instances from 50-1.00 higher. Buyer attendance and activity were both very good. The quality of the run was also very good with quite a few fleshier-type cows on offer, which drew good attention. On a very light test, slaughter bulls trended with a weaker undertone. The supply included 31 percent steers, 8 percent heifers, 55 percent cows, 2 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

Note: Prices quoted below include Tuesday's run only as Monday was a federal holiday. According to private sources, Monday's sale was very active with buyers snatching steers up very quickly, even the lesser quality stock.

Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steers sold fully .50-1.00 higher. Bidding started off a little slow, but once the good ones started coming in trading was very active. There were some very nice quality steers on offer, with buyer interest very good. The bullish February live cattle futures contract remains around the magical 80.00 mark, which is very farmer friendly. The Western feed yards have moved a few pens from 78.00-79.00 as of Thursday evening, which is a full 1.00 lower than last week. However, here in Lancaster County prices have held up very well, and the market definitely seems to have some fire left in it. A very fancy supply of slaughter heifers went untested due to Tuesday's very light run. Although, there was definitely a higher undertone noted. Most Holstein feeders went to pick their check up with a smile on their face as well, as prices for the top quality steers ranged from 63.00-68.00, which is also much firmer than Tuesday's light test. There was quite a noticeable increase in both Holstein numbers and quality. Slaughter cows sold fully 1.00-3.00 higher in very active bidding, and good buyer attendance; and it was not like there was a shortage in numbers as nearly 500 head went through the ring. Cow carcass cutout values are up slightly, but not enough to justify the advances in Thursday's market. Slaughter bulls were 2.00-3.00 higher when compared to the light Tuesday test. The supply included 34 percent steers, 6 percent heifers, 44 percent cows, 5 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1250-1455 lbs 79.00-81.50, few Yield Grade 5 77.00. Choice 2-3 1100-1485 lbs 76.00-79.00, Yield Grade 4 70.25-74.00, heavy 1505-1585 lbs 70.25-75.25, heavy 1600-1695 lbs 65.25-68.00, several high dressing Charolais and Limi-X's 78.25-82.75 with a very fancy black individual at 83.75. Select and low Choice 2-3 1150-1445 lbs 72.00-75.50, heavy 1505-1590 lbs 66.00-68.50. Select 1-2 1170-1460 lbs 70.00-73.75.

HOLSTEIN STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-3 1345-1560 lbs 64.00-68.85, heavy 1610-1655 lbs 58.75-60.75, heavy 1730-1800 lbs 53.75 to mostly 57.75. Choice 2-3 1370-1595 lbs 60.25-63.25. ### Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO

January 22, 2002

Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat bids turned lower but corn and soybean bids remained firm, today.

Parts of the winter wheat growing areas received snow cover to go along with the bitter cold temperatures overnight, adding light pressure to wheat bids. Drought concerns are still offering support to grain and soybean bids. Cold temperatures, single digits, continued to swoop down across much of the US. Slow export sales overnight for most commodities but soybeans bids are receiving some strength from optimistic talks about China. Light fund buying was noted in bean pits.

Wheat steady to 5 cents lower. Corn 1 to 2 cents higher. Sorghum 2 to 4 cents higher. Soybeans 4 to 7 cents higher.

MOZART'S BIRTHDAY

Composer Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was born on January 27, 1756, and was quickly recognized as a child prodigy. Some thank his father for promoting his genius, others blame him for creating a workaholic. In 1791, at the age of 35, Mozart died of typhus, worsened by exhaustion and overwork. In debt at the time (and frequently throughout his career), he was buried in an unidentified pauper's grave. He had composed more than 600 works, including the operas The Marriage of Figaro and Don Giovanni.

The main thing the public demands of a composer is that he be dead.

-Arthur Schopenhauer, French composer (1892-1955)

OPINION

Decisions That Affect Agriculture And You

Editor's note for all Guest Editorials: Please keep in mind that the opinions of the writers don't necessarily agree with the editor's. For the benefit of our diverse readership, we strive to provide a balance of opinion in Lancaster Farming.

You have probably heard the phrase "information is power." I believe that growers and their organizations and representatives should all have access to basic information that creates a level playing field for our industry.

Your agricultural service-providers use ag statistics when making decisions such as justifying funding for extension and university research, grower groups lobbying in Harrisburg or Washington D.C. on your behalf, locating farm supply outlets, evaluating farm loan applications, re-registering pesticides, developing and implementing disaster or Farm Bill programs, land preservation, etc.

You can affect these decisions by taking the time to complete and return the Census of Agriculture. We need your help so that decisions made that affect you and your farm are based on accurate information.

To put it another way, consider the following questions: Do you use information, advice, or educational services from the extension service? Have you ever used agricultural advances developed by state universities and extension?

Do you buy supplies such as farm equipment, fertilizers, pesticides, etc.? Do you belong to a cooperative, commodity, trade, or farmer association?

Have you ever borrowed money to finance your agricultural operation? Do you buy crop insurance? Have you received financial help because of market losses, drought, or other natural disasters? Do you take advantage of farm programs in the current or past Farm Bills?

If you have answered "yes" to any of these questions, then you have been the beneficiary of agricultural statistics generated by the Census of Agriculture and other surveys conducted by USDA's National Agricultural Service (NASS).

In addition to witnessing the sights and sounds all met under a continuous 16-acre roof, it is always valuable for me to meet with members of the farming community and to hear their perspectives on the commonwealth's agricultural issues.

Though the Farm Show is a seasonal highlight for the state capital, 2003 is a banner year for this event. This past December, (Former) Gov. Schweiker opened a 360,000-square-foot annex to the Farm Show Complex. With the new facilities, the show is undeniably the largest indoor agricultural affair in all of America.

Harrisburg's complex attracts more than 200 events and exhibitions each year, but with an esti-

To Keep Calves Healthy During Cold Winter Weather

We have had a chilly winter this year and it looks like we will be facing more of the same in the weeks ahead.

Beth Grove, extension dairy/environment agent in Lancaster, points out when temperatures reach down below 30 degrees Fahrenheit (F), most dairy calves need extra energy for warmth. Low temperatures and wind chills can cause a baby calf to use energy stores and burn body fat if it does not receive enough energy and dry matter. Weight loss and hypothermia are the result, and the calf may consequently become weak and less aggressive at feeding. Their immune systems may also be compromised, making them more susceptible to illness.

Here are some thoughts on ways to keep your calves healthier and growing during the cold winter months to come.

When new calves are born in the winter, the first step is to provide a clean and dry calving pen. New bedding should be used for each cow before calving, mostly to help prevent the spread of disease. During extra cold weather, deeper bedding provides warmth and insulation for the calf.

Calves should not be allowed to nurse directly from the cow, particularly if your herd is fighting Johne's Disease. It has been shown that Johne's can be spread through fecal matter and/or colostrum from cows in later stages of Johne's Disease.

Feed 3-4 quarts of colostrum as soon as possible after birth, using an esophageal feeder if necessary. Consider using a colostrum meter to ensure that the IgG (immunoglobulin concentration) is adequate for providing disease resistance for the calf, and colostrum from Johne's negative cows when possible.

It is a good idea to feed a high fat (greater than 20 percent) milk replacer during winter months, at 12-14 percent of body weight. Researchers at Penn State estimated that the energy requirement of maintenance alone for calves fed milk replacers was increased by as much as 32 percent when they were housed at 25 degrees F compared with calves housed at 50 degrees F.

A simple way of adding energy to the milk replacer is to add a small volume of whole bulk tank milk to the liquid, but this is not highly recommended because of the possibility of disease transmission. According to Dr. Jud Heinrich at Penn State, waste milk from cows with known infections of Johne's, E. coli, leukosis, or salmonella should not be fed to calves unless it has been pasteurized first.

A better way to increase the energy concentration of the replacer may be to add more powder to the water before mixing, but you may want to check with your supplier or veterinarian for recommendations. There are also commercial fat supplements available to add to replacers for winter feeding, usually added to replacers at 1/4 to 1/2 pound per day to provide extra energy.

We feed dairy calves twice daily for our convenience, not theirs! It has been shown that, given a choice, most young calves would consume about 20-25 percent of their body weight daily in 6-8 feedings for rapid growth and optimum health. If we fed this much twice daily, health problems would result, so in severe weather, consider feeding three times daily, where you could feed a higher percentage of body weight in replacer.

Keep fresh water available to calves at all times, even baby calves. Try using warmed water to keep it from freezing as fast, and replace the water often if you can. Water can aid in rumen development and can increase grain consumption by young calves. Baby calves without easy access to water will take longer to wean.

Encourage grain starter at an early age, particularly in winter — calves with working rumens are less stressed by cold than those on milk diets.

As a final note, the person who cares for heifer calves on the dairy will need to take extra time in the winter months to care for each calf as an individual, rather than all baby calves as a group. Watch calves carefully for signs of depression, weakness, or unusually cold extremities, all signs of hypothermia, and treat calves accordingly.

To Jump-Start

Equipment The Correct Way

Vehicles and machinery that have been idle during winter may be difficult to start.

If you need to jump-start a piece of equipment that has a weak or discharged battery, be sure to follow these safety tips.

First, connect the positive cable marked with a "+" or red clamps to the positive terminal of the weakened battery. Then clamp the other end of the positive cable to the positive post of the charged battery.

Next, connect the negative cable to the negative post of the good battery. Finally, make the last connection of the negative cable to the engine block or frame of the nonstarting vehicle.

The engine block or frame acts like a negative terminal. By keeping the clamps of the weakened battery separated, one reduces the possibility of unwanted stray sparks causing an explosion or fire. When jump-starting a vehicle, remember to wear safety glasses to protect your eyes from acid or battery parts in the event of an explosion.

If battery acid does contact your skin, it should be flushed off immediately with clean, cool water. If your eyes should be splashed, flush them with water and seek medical help.

Once the vehicle is started, remove the cables in reverse order. Be careful not to allow the cables to contact each other when removing them. Store the jumper cables in a clean, dry location.

GETTING RECYCLED

Background Scripture:

Luke 22:31-34, 54-62; John 21:1-22.

Devotional Reading:

Acts 4:1-13.

Remember when we just threw trash away? Well, now we recycle much of it, because we know that it has some intrinsic value that can be renewed. Although we, as Americans, still have a long way to go in matters of ecology, the recycling movement is catching on across our nation.

If only we did as well with people. We live in a throwaway society and, as wasteful as we are with things, we are even more prodigal with our children.

Lisa Aversa Richette, once an assistant district attorney in Philadelphia and later a judge, wrote of her experiences in juvenile court in "The Throwaway Children."

"Established at the turn of the century," she writes, "the Juvenile Court was designed to reclaim America's lost youth by providing a second chance, a moment of hope, which the child and the adults in his world could seize upon to reconstruct his life."

But, "the American people have been content to regard juvenile courts as sanitation departments whose job is to keep the community clean by picking these kids off the streets."

Instead of "recycling centers," our juvenile detention prisons rarely rise above the level of warehouses for "ruined" human beings.

This is no less true of our prison systems. In what is the most enlightened, privileged nation in the world, why? Because most people, including Christians, do not believe in rehabilitating our most precious national resource, human lives.

Sheep Vs. Goats

Many believe that, whether by choice or biological programming, some people are "good" and others are just "bad." Furthermore, they believe that there is little or no crossing that line. The latter must be warehoused so that they do not impinge upon the "good" people.

After 2,000 years of Christianity, it is incredible that so many of us who profess to be Christians still believe that people are rarely recyclable.

Just how "bad" can a person be and still be redeemed? Simon Peter's story gives us an answer. Because he is the leader of the Twelve, extreme loyalty to Christ was to be expected. But, in Jesus' greatest hour of need, Peter failed him, a failure that Jesus foresaw: "Simon, Simon, behold, Satan demanded to have you..." But Jesus also foresaw his redemption: "...and when you have turned again, strengthen my people." Peter's failure does not mean that he is unredeemable. Jesus has a job for him to do.

Peter's failure was monumental. When Jesus was seized and led away to the high priest's house, "Peter followed at a distance" (22:54b). Three times that evening he had an opportunity to stand with Jesus, but each time he denied that he even knew Jesus. If you and I had served on a "membership committee" for the Twelve, we would have decided right then and there that Peter was "out" and never again would be "in."

Peter And Us

Haven't there been times when we also have followed Jesus at a distance so that people would not recognize that we are with him? Have there not also been times when we have denied him — if not so bluntly as Peter, at least as surely? Yet did Peter's cowardly failure disqualify him from reclamation? Do ours?

Whenever in doubt, we need to remember how Jesus responded: "Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?" Three times, Jesus asks this question, because it is one that Peter and we might answer too quickly.

There is an interesting parallel between Peter's three denials of Christ and his three questions about Peter's loyalty. And three times Jesus emphasizes the importance of the question: "If you love me, he says to Simon — and us — 'Feed my lambs,' '...tend my sheep,' 'Feed my sheep' (Jn 21:15-17). Despite his terrible failure, Jesus found him worth redeeming and gave him a task.

If anyone must believe in the recycling of human beings, we, the followers of Jesus Christ, are those people. The gospel is the good news of redemption. The Church is a redeeming force in the world, or it is not the Church. And a Christian who is not into the recycling of society's moral "goats" is really not part of Jesus' flock.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening. Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitis problems. Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening. Will help rumen function over freshening. Less feet problems and less stress.

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.

January 22, 2003

Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.2890-1.4072. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.2890-1.4179 mostly 1.3105-1.3400.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9500-1.000; Class III - spot prices - .7200-8500.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week: In 0, Out 2; last week: In 10, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week: In 0, Out 0; last week: In 0, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 0.

The base price for Class I milk for February 2003 is $10.23 per cwt., down $0.33 from January. A Class I differential specific to each pricing point (county) is added to the base price to determine the applicable Class I price. The Class II skim milk price for January is $6.90, down $0.47 from January.

During December, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 12.22 billion pounds, up 1.8% from December 2001. The following are the December-to-December changes for selected states: Texas +.3%, New York +.3%, Vermont -1.7%, Virginia -1.9%, Pennsylvania -2.0%, Florida -4.0%, and Kentucky -6.4%. For the above-mentioned states, the combined milk cow numbers are down 1,200 head from last December. Milk cows in the twenty major states total 7,750,000 head, up 47,000 from a year earlier.

Milk production ranges from steady to slightly higher in most of the region. Some heavy snow falls in the Northeast, particularly lake effect snow in New York, are causing scattered farm pick-up delays. Cold weather in the Southeast is having an impact on the milk flow in much of the area. Freezing temperatures in Florida and other Gulf Coast states are slowing the milk flow. Florida's need for milk eased this week and handlers actually shipped a few loads out of state for processing. Slightly higher milk production and flat demand caused handlers to carry more milk into this week. Farther north, another snow storm and cold temperatures are expected in the Mid-South and bottled milk sales are good. Some Southeastern handlers are pulling intra-company milk greater distances to meet this good demand.

Class I milk needs are also good in the Northeast, which is surprising to some contacts. However, the good Class I milk demand results in more standardization and, therefore, more cream to be cleared. Surplus milk volumes range from light to heavy.

The condensed skim is weak and reports of some distressed loads clearing the region were noted. Demand is slow and prices are unchanged on Class II, lower for Class III.

The fluid cream market is weak. Offerings are more than ample for the slow demand. Class II spot prices are generally lower as the CME butter average was down nearly three cents last week and multiples are generally in the low to mid 120's, f.o.b. Ice cream producers are taking normal volumes, but a few plants are taking advantage of the low-cost cream that is being offered. Production of dips, sour cream, and bottled cream is lower as demand is slowing along seasonal patterns. Cream cheese output is mostly steady with most producers taking contracted volumes. Churning activity is heavy and some Eastern butter makers are churning only their own cream or the cream from long-time suppliers. Excess cream volumes heading to the Midwest are heavy. Some Eastern handlers report that nearly all (90+%) of their spot cream is clearing to Midwestern butter plants.

CHEESE RISES ABOVE SUPPORT
• Blocks show strength.
• Butter is blah!
• Global prices remain strong.
Cheese prices showed some strength this week in the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Block prices rose from $1.14 per pound on Monday, Jan. 13 to $1.17 by Friday, Jan. 17. Barrels remained unchanged at about $1.10/$1.11 per pound. The rest of the market remained weak, with Grade AA butter trading at $1.07-$1.08 per pound and western nonfat dry milk trading in the range $0.80-$0.82 per pound.

USDA announced the Class I mover today. It fell from $10.56 per CWT in January 2003 to $10.23 for February. The Class IV skim milk price was again the mover for Class I. The Boston Class I price in February 2003 will be $13.48 per CWT. My math indicates that the February 2003 MILC payment will be $1.56 per CWT.
USDA announced the 2002 annual average cooperative Class I over-order premiums in major markets. The U.S. average for 2002 for 33 markets was $1.44 per CWT. It ranged from a low of $0.15 per CWT in Phoenix, Ariz. to a high of $3.05 in Miami, Fla. The annual average over-order premium was $1.11 per CWT in 1999, $1.28 in 2000, and $1.15 in 2001.

The December milk production report was released today. Guess what? Cow numbers continued to increase, from 7.791 million head in November to 7.797 million head in December 2002. Milk production in December 2002 was up 1.8 percent from a year ago. California alone had a 4.2 percent increase in milk production over a year ago. Most of the growth in cow numbers continued to be from the West.
The global market for dairy products remains strong. Skim milk powder, called nonfat dry milk in the U.S., was trading at just under $0.80 per pound in European and Pacific markets. That means western market prices in the U.S. will be very close to global prices.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
January 17, 2003

Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER SUMMARY for week ending Jan. 17, 2003. Total Receipts: 484,600, last week 512,200. Direct 49,800; last week 75,000. Video/Internet 47,200, last week 1,400. Auctions 387,600, last week 435,800. This weeks reported auction volume included 48 percent over 600 lb and 43 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers sold 2.00-4.00 lower on much lighter demand and slower trading. The full decline was posted on weights over 700 lbs that are due to finish in late May or June. Stocker prices ended the week from steady to 3.00 lower with uneven demand, depending on location. Winter wheat areas and certain parts of the Southeast were able to hold their calf market together as recent snows and rains have enhanced grazing conditions. On the other hand, dry weather in the Midwest has put considerable pressure on stocker demand and many producers have run out of both feed and water. Colorado's calf market was flooded with heavy receipts this week with many markets holding National Western Stock Show Specials.

Friday's USDA cattle-on-feed report should not cause much of a splash as the data was much as expected, except for better than predicted marketings for December. On-feed numbers were 92 percent of last year's, placements were 4 percent higher and finished sales were 1 percent higher than 2002.

Fat cattle prices hit the magic "80.00" mark this week, with dressed sales from 124.00-125.00. Boxed beef prices are as high as they have been since the start of the current method of reporting, which was in the early 1990's.

Cattle feeders are finally getting their turn to show a profit in this industry and it seemed like the cards would continue to fall in their favor. That is until this week, when yet another unfounded news report blindsided the market. This is time it wasn't Oprah's fault or a pen-full of old cows in Kansas. An employee of Texas Tech University failed to account for a few vials of plague bacteria. Somehow, the media connected this with the cattle industry. Perhaps it was Lubbock's close proximity to the Texas Panhandle Feedlot Industry. In any event, Wednesday's CME Live and Feeder Cattle Futures posted limit-down settlements. Even though the whole fiasco was disproved the following day, the damage was done and the markets did not recover. The cattle market is very sensitive and the next collapse may have something to do with those decorative fiberglass cows that have become popular in many US cities.

the state, he took the oath of office at the beginning of the ceremony. Normally, a new governor is sworn in after the inaugural address.

"I stand before you as governor of what could be the greatest state in the nation," Rendell said at the beginning of his address.

The 12-minute speech primarily focused on the challenges facing Pennsylvania's government, economy, and education system. He did not specifically mention agriculture or, for that matter, any other of Pennsylvania's production industries.

"First and foremost, we face a state budget deficit that looms as one of the worst in the modern history of Pennsylvania, one that could reach $2 billion or more for the next fiscal year. Make no mistake. Our current state fiscal situation is a crisis — a crisis that threatens all of us, Republicans and Democrats alike, urban and rural, east and west.

"We've tried valiantly to fix the problem in recent years... but the days of short-term fixes are over. The economy has not recovered, and the time has come to pay the piper. And paying the piper will mean short-term pain which, if we are willing to endure, will surely lead to long-term gain."

Rendell said his first priority will be finding a way to "make government live within its means." This, he said, will in-

About 9,500 visitors from throughout the state attended the Gov. Ed Rendell Inaugural Ball at the renovated Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg Tuesday evening. Here, guests make their way to seats at the gala concert celebration in the Equine Arena, which included artists such as Bobby Rydell, Phil Driscoll, Dee Dee Sharp, Jerry Blavat, David Foster, Sister Sledge, Nita Whitaker, Chuck Berry, Chubby Checker, and Philadelphia's Joy Unlimited Youth Mass Choir. About 9,500 were in attendance at the Gov. Ed Rendell Inaugural Ball in the new Equine Arena at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. The Tuesday evening event included 9,500 supporters at the "Taste of Pennsylvania" buffet who sampled food from 70 restaurateurs and companies from throughout the state. In a video shown to the thousands of Rendell supporters, Farm Show Director Dennis Grumbine noted how the arena, which housed horse and other animal events throughout Farm Show Week, was transformed in a matter of days from "bills to a ballroom." clude finding new sources of revenue, reducing spending, and cutting government waste.

Pointing out that Pennsylvania's economy ranks 48th out of 50 and that the state has lost more than 80,000 jobs over the past two years, Rendell said revitalizing the economy is essential to Pennsylvania's future.

Education will be the key to keeping young people in the state and ensuring an economically viable future, according to Rendell.

"Far too long, Pennsylvania has short-changed its funding for public schools. Public schools throughout Pennsylvania are in crisis, and while it is true that money alone cannot fix these problems, it is also true that if we fail to adequately invest in our children, then we will succeed only in purchasing Pennsylvania's economic failure on the installment plan," he said.

"We can revitalize our economy by making an unprecedented level of investment into an economic stimulus program that will leverage substantial private sector investment.

"We can deliver a helping hand to communities where Pennsylvanians long ago stopped believing in the promise of better days ahead. We can do it, and what's more, we can do it without sacrificing the spectacular beauty of our environment."

Rendell called the state's property tax system "outmoded and unfair, doing little more than passing the buck to those who can least afford it — our older citizens who live on fixed incomes and cannot continue to support these increasing taxes.

"I campaigned on a promise to reduce property taxes by increasing the state share of education funding. It is a promise I intend to keep," he said. "The quality of a child's education in Pennsylvania shall never again depend on where he or she lives."

He called on elected officials to put aside partisanship under his leadership.

"The politics of division, of pitting east against west, urban versus rural, region against region, and people against people will have no place in my administration."

Catherine Baker Knoll was sworn in as lieutenant governor prior to the Rendell inauguration. She had formerly served as treasurer of Pennsylvania from 1989 to 1997.

Dignitaries on hand for the day included outgoing Gov. Mark Schweiker, former Gov. Tom Ridge, Attorney General Mike Fisher, Auditor General Bob Casey, and numerous state and U.S. legislators from Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Producers of wool and mohair are now eligible to apply for either a nine-month, nonrecourse marketing assistance loan or a Loan Deficiency Payment (LDP).

Under the new wool and mohair program, producers have until Jan. 31 to request LDPs for 2002-crop wool and mohair that have not yet been marketed and remain in storage.

If LDPs are not requested, producers have until Jan. 31 to request loans for 2002-crop wool or mohair. Each year thereafter, the period to request loans and LDPs will extend until Jan. 31 of the year following the crop year in which the applicable commodity is sheared.

Several special conditions also apply: The Farm Bill authorized LDPs for 2002-crop wool or mohair producers even though they had lost beneficial interest before the program was implemented.

Producers who sold their wool or mohair before Oct. 11, 2002, may apply for LDPs through Jan. 31, 2003.

Although special provision is made for 2002-crop wool or mohair for which producers lost beneficial interest before program implementation, producers must maintain beneficial interest in the wool or mohair in order to receive program benefits for the 2003 and subsequent marketing years.

The LDP rate computed for the date of sale will be the rate producers will receive. USDA has announced weekly loan repayment amounts for wool and mohair from Jan. 1, 2002 and will continue to until the present; the information will be available on the FSA Website or at Farm Service Agency (FSA) local offices.

AGR Insurance Offered For N.J. Farmers

RALEIGH, N.C. — Adjusted Gross Revenue (AGR) insurance for farmers is again being offered in New Jersey for 2003, according to the Raleigh Regional Office of the USDA Risk Management Agency. The application deadline is Jan. 31.

Current AGR policyholders also have until Jan. 31 to make any changes to existing contracts. AGR provides whole farm income protection under an umbrella-type policy that covers income from all crops and some livestock, provided that the income from livestock and livestock products does not exceed 35 percent of total farm income.

Unlike traditional crop insurance guarantees based on yields, AGR provides a guarantee against a significant decline in overall farm income from the average of the most recent five years (1997-2001).

As a result of substantial premium subsidies provided by the USDA, AGR can be a very affordable way to guarantee an income flow from your farm operation. Farmers are strongly urged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for more information and premium quotes.

For a list of crop insurance agents, farmers may contact their local USDA Farm Service Agency office or log on to the following Risk Management Agency Website at <http://www.3rma.usda.gov/tools/agents/>.

Ag Secretary Vows To Work For All Pa. Farmers

ernment and public institutions. He has served on various agencies at local, state, and federal levels.

In fact, he seemed remarkably relaxed when he shared with Lancaster Farming his views on agriculture and his new job of managing a department with 650 employees and a $200 million operating budget.

Boosting profitability for Pennsylvania farmers will be his top priority — one that will be applied all types of farmers, Wolff promised.

"In the ag world today, there are two ways to continue to farm — stay at the size you are and be as efficient as you can, or grow and expand," he said. "We'll work with all farms. Farmers should have either option. They should have equal rights to do those things."

Wolff said there are various ways to enhance the livelihood of farmers in the state. These include promoting domestic and foreign markets for Pennsylvania products and educating the non-farm public about modern agriculture.

Some areas in the ag department will be redefined in order to organize new local marketing initiatives, according to Wolff.

Wolff said he supports free trade — under the condition that agricultural products coming into the U.S. are not subsidized by foreign governments and meet the same sanitary standards that are required here. A better term for that is "fair trade," he said.

"I'm in favor of tariffs (on imports), as long as they are used to generate money and do not discriminate against the product," he said.

Educating the public about farming is another of Wolff's major concerns.

"With under two percent of the population being farmers, we have less people who can relate to what a modern farming operation is like."

Wolff said he will work to enhance public relations by increasing programs in which the public can visit working farms. He also said he would encourage more agriculture in elementary and high school classes.

He supports Gov. Ed Rendell's initiative to make low interest loans available to farmers under the small business program.

"This administration wants to continue to follow through with the concept of farmers as small businesses," he said. "We want to treat farmers like we treat the rest of the businesses in Pennsylvania."

Wolff said he supports the concept behind the now-expired Senate Bill 1413, which would have allowed farmers to be reimbursed for legal fees when successfully suing townships for ordinances that curb expansion of livestock operations.

He is also in favor of lowering property taxes as well as continuing to preserve Pennsylvania farmland.

Wolff is the third generation of his family on Pen-Col Farms. His parents, Chris and Pearl, and his grandparents moved from Quarryville, Lancaster County, to the farm near Millville in the early 1950s. The family kept a herd of Guernseys until the mid-1970s when they switched to Holsteins and began to focus on developing purebred genetics and marketing bulls.

Wolff and his father began doing embryo transfer work in 1978, when this technique was still in its early stages. Today, Wolff markets Holsteins to countries around the world, with France, England, Japan, and Holland at the top of the list.

"Production and functional type" are the goals of the breeding program on Pen-Col Farms, Wolff said. He employs seven workers to manage the 700-acre, 500-cow operation, including a 100-cow milking herd.

Since 1987, Wolff has been engaged in a joint venture with American Breeders Service, Inc., Madison, Wis., where he is involved in sampling and marketing Holstein genetics internationally. He also partners with Grosvenor Farm, U.K., in developing Holsteins for the international market.

In appointing Wolff to the secretary of agriculture post, Gov. Rendell referred to Wolff's history as a professional farmer and his experience in the state, national, and international ag community.

"Dennis will be a good manager who will help to accomplish the threefold mission of preserving Pennsylvania farmland, increasing profitability for farmers, and helping farmers export their products," Rendell said.

Wolff's involvement in public service include:

- From 1997 to 2001, he was a member of the USDA's Farm Service Agency committee in Pennsylvania.

Wolff is preparing this 2-year-old Holstein, Pen-Col Aaron Cindy, for her first type classification this week.

- Since 1999, Wolff served on the agriculture technical committee of the World Trade Organization.

- From 1988 to 1998, Wolff was on the Pennsylvania Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission — instrumental in launching the Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostics Laboratory System.

- Wolff joined Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders board of directors in 2002.

- He has served with the Penn State Board of Trustees since 2001.

- Since 1986, he has been president of the Nicholas Wolff Foundation and Camp Victory, a non-profit summer camp for handicapped and chronically ill children.

- From 1986-1992, he served on the Greenwood Township Planning Commission.

- Wolff served on Northern Central Bank board of directors from 1981-1996.

- Since 1986, he has served on the Millville Mutual Insurance Company board of directors.

Wolff is the father of five children and has been divorced for eight years. His oldest son, Corey, runs a Holstein export business near Mount Joy, Lancaster County.

Dennis Wolff, newly-appointed Pennsylvania ag secretary, ties up some loose ends at his farm office this week prior moving to the Department of Ag building in Harrisburg.

York Co. Youth Exhibits Supreme Cow At Farm Show

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A Holstein shown by Cory Thompson of York County was named supreme dairy animal at the Farm Show here Jan. 17.

"Coredale Linjet R Dazzle," a senior 3-year-old cow, was named top of six breed champions in the open dairy show.

Thompson, 15, is a 10th-grader at Dover High School. He lives on a farm near Wellsville with parents Roy and Tammy Thompson.

"It probably hasn't sunk in yet," Thompson said of his cow being named supreme champion. He has owned Dazzle since she was a calf, though this was his first year exhibiting at the Farm Show. His champion cow is housed at the farm of Dale and Deanna Bendig, Gettysburg.

Dazzle is scored EX-90 and was named Reserve Junior All Pennsylvania Fall Yearling in 2000.

Thompson is active in York County beef and swine 4-H livestock clubs as well as the dairy club.

"I sort of like them all," Thompson said of the three livestock clubs. He hopes to remain involved with dairying after he finishes school.

"Dad and I have plans to maybe start up our own little dairy farm," he said.

Thompson's younger sister, Amanda, also shows Jersey cattle.

Reserve supreme champion went the grand champion Jersey, "Hearts Desire Hermitage Fanta," owned by Keith and Donnette Fisher, New Enterprise, Bedford County.

The dairy show marked a big day for Bedford County dairy exhibitors, who took home breed championships in four breeds: Ayrshire, Guernsey, Jersey, and Milking Shorthorn.

The other competitors for supreme champion were "Plum Bottom Trident's Paris," Ayrshire owned by Jason Mowry, Roaring Spring, Bedford County; "Heilinger Ay Nina Norm-Twin," Brown Swiss owned by Bruce and Laura Heilinger, Lebanon, Lebanon County; "Sniders Bens Alayah," Guernsey owned by Aaron Gable, New Enterprise, Bedford County; and "HDCR/Horizon Rebel Augusta," Milking Shorthorn owned by Keith and Donnette Fisher, New Enterprise.

Judge Brian Garrison called the following results for the six breeds.

THE TIME IS RIGHT!

To Feed

ROASTED GRAIN

*Its time to lower those feed prices.

With extremely low grain prices and the modest price for roasting, your grain can be turned into a valuable feed commodity.

*Its time to trim away those extra cost factors.

Custom roasting on your farm.

- Gives you the ability to feed your own grain, not someone else's.
- Eliminates trucking expenses
- No mill charges, shrinkage, storage and handling.

*Its time to value feeding grains that have been purged.

Only flame roasting can effectively remove molds and reduce toxins to tolerant levels. Better herd health will.

- Reduce veterinary and breeding bills
- Enhance production of milk.
- Increase weight gains in beef and swine.

mated 400,000 visitors, the Pennsylvania Farm Show is the greatest financial boon to the capital area.

The state's efforts to upgrade the Farm Show Complex illustrate a continued commitment to and investment in the agriculture industry. This type of project allows us all to better appreciate and celebrate the strength of Pennsylvania's farmers and the importance of their work. The production of the commonwealth's farms comprises our largest industry and the lifeblood of the Pennsylvania economy. Our agricultural goods have sustained the state since its founding and helped to feed the nation and indeed the world.

Today, for example, we are home to companies who produce foodstuffs under names as widely known as Hershey and Utz, and these businesses are built on the crops and produce that come from our state farms.

My role in the U.S. Senate allows me to stand up for the state's rural communities by fighting to preserve vital Pennsylvania farmland from urban sprawl and development. Since 1996, the Farmland Protection Program has sheltered thousands of acres of farmland within the commonwealth and ensured the economic viability of the agricultural industry by maintaining the most productive land for future generations. This is of particular importance for our dairy farmers who drive the largest sector of our farming community.

I will remain supportive of the program and other measures, such as the Dairy Farmers Fairness Act, which was intended to provide dairy producers with a price safety net during a time of market volatility. My conversations with folks at the Farm Show further bolster my resolve to preserve our farmland and work for the farmers and the economic health of our commonwealth.

I am proud to represent Pennsylvania's 60,000 hard-working, farming families, all of whom are recognized by the Farm Show. This event is a wonderful way to honor the things they do every day, and some of the things they do on the side — from prize-winning baked goods and country line dancing to beautifully cultivated corn and best-bred livestock. It also reminds us of the state's long agricultural history and of the American entrepreneurial spirit that Pennsylvania's farmers continue to reflect.

Sen. Rick Santorum

Snyder Conservation District Hosts Farmer's Winter Meeting

Dr. Sjored Duiker of Penn State will talk about the causes, effects, and prevention of soil compaction.

Other topics include Chemsweep (Pennsylvania's pesticide disposal program), tackling Pennsylvania's 10 most unwanted weeds, the use of adjuvants in pesticides, and possible agricultural management strategies. A representative from an agricultural organization will speak about agricultural law issues.

Lunch will be provided at a nominal fee of $3 per person. Payment will be collected at the door. Reservations should be made by Friday, Jan. 31 at the Snyder

Producers Discover Methods To Help Make Family Dairy Farms Profitable

farm to the next generation so they can afford the farm and the farm also provide sufficient income to the person retiring.

"If you have a master plan, it is like putting together the pieces of a puzzle," said Bare. "All that (plan implementation) falls into place when it comes together and it can help you accomplish your goals."

Beth Grove, dairy extension agent, discussed using records to improve a dairy herd. "One of the best ways to be successful is to look at record-keeping, and look at records can do for you," said Grove. "One of the secrets of success on any farm is not only financial planning but looking at records, and seeing where your herd can improve."

Records show what is going on with the herd, identify strengths and weaknesses, predict what money could be saved in improvements, and provide benchmarking or comparison information.

To monitor herd performance, Grove advised using a herdbook clinic form, available at Lancaster's extension office, which "gives you an idea of benchmarking and where your herd needs to be," she said. The form compares the herds in Lancaster County.

Another tool is the spreadsheet developed by a University of Minnesota professor. The spreadsheet takes into account many factors to help estimate the cost of mastitis for the producer's farm. It is available at www.uwex.edu/milkquality/bank/.

To see what other, similar dairy herds are achieving, producers can use the Dairy Metrics program, which costs $5 a month and is available at www.drm.s.org/dairymetrics.html. Producers select information to display about their individual herd in comparison to herds which meet criteria that they select. Extension agents will also run the program free of charge.

Also speaking at the Lancaster meeting were Vinton Smith, dairy extension agent, and Dr. Charles Gardner, Agway.

Extension agent Beth Grove and Ron Bare, financial adviser, spoke at a family dairy farm seminar conducted this week.

The supreme champion ewe was a Southdown shown by Amanda Miller of Bernville.

Winning the supreme champion title was nothing new for the Van Wagner's of Dauphin. They have won several of these titles before at the Farm Show.

The couple has been competing at the Farm Show for at least 10 years. This time around their winning ram was a senior ram lamb. Big Deal was also a reserve junior champion at the National Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky.

Amanda Miller's winning animal was a Southdown spring ewe. Miller is 17 years old and a junior at Tulpehocken High School. She is a member of 4-H and FFA and has been showing at the Farm Show since she was a little girl.

The winning ram and ewe were selected from 10 different breeds shown at the Farm Show. Judges for the supreme champion competition were David Harmonn of Ohio and Ben Bow and John Conaway, both of Pennsylvania.

Maine-Anjou Heifer, Angus Bull Are Selected Supreme Beef At Farm Show

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A Maine-Anjou heifer and an Angus bull were named supreme champions of seven breeds in the open beef exhibition at the Farm Show.

Sara Jo Campbell of Sycamore, Greene County, is owner and exhibitor of "AMC Mattocks Ms Madison," the supreme heifer. Madison is an early spring yearling bred by Mattocks Show Steers.

Campbell, 17, has been showing for about 10 years, but this marks her first supreme champion.

"It's exciting," she said. "I've never had it before."

Campbell also had an outstanding day in the junior show, taking home awards for both grand champion and reserve grand champion Maine-Anjou with Madison and "KJCF Marabelle 42M," the junior champion Maine-Anjou calf.

Campbell is a junior at West Greene High School. She owns about 30 head of Maine-Anjou and Shorthorn cattle on the 270-acre farm where she lives with her parents, Jamie and Jackie Campbell.

JoAnn and John Hausner, Dover, York County, exhibited the supreme champion bull, "JDH Key Heir," a junior yearling Angus born April 6, 2001.

The Hausners are the owners of JDH Cattle Company. They keep a herd of about 65 pure-bred Angus.

Judges presiding over the show were James Gillooly from Indiana, John P. ... from Maine, Scott Greiner of Virginia, and Aaron Grant from Michigan.

They commented on the high quality of beef animals in the show.

"Breeding cattle of this quality shows the program is working," Gillooly said.

The show included Angus, Shorthorn, Hereford, Simmental, Limousin, Maine-Anjou, and Red Angus.

Moore's Economic Outlook To Highlight Crops Conferences

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Lou Moore, Penn State agricultural economics professor will deliver the keynote address for the 2003 Southeast Pennsylvania Crops Conferences.

His keynote address, "What does the future hold for local producers?" will reflect Dr. Moore's more than four decades of professional experience. Now in its second year, the conferences are scheduled for Jan. 28-31.

Daytime and evening sessions are scheduled at convenient locations throughout Southeast Pennsylvania. Locations include:

- Jan. 28 - East Brandywine Firehall, Chester County (daytime).
- Jan. 29 - Allentown Days Inn, Lehigh County (daytime and evening).
- Jan. 30 - Montgomery County 4-H Center, Montgomery County (daytime and evening).
- Jan. 31 - Leesport Farmers' Market, Berks County (daytime).

Agricultural experts representing Canada and the Northeast United States will offer quality information to keep agricultural producers updated on current issues.

Some highlights of this year's program include: fumigation recertification credits (Lehigh and Montgomery County locations), hands-on weed identification, update on the new 2002 Farm Bill, small grain management, and nutrient uptake of crops.

Both core and category pesticide recertification credits will be available.

When you have to make a decision about your operation, you probably want good information to help you make the best decision. Similarly, when others are making decisions about agriculture, we all hope that they use as much good information as possible. Like it or not, there will continue to be regulations, legislation, and other decisions made about agriculture that have an impact on your operation. Just as on your farm, policy decisions made with little or no information can be as bad as those made with wrong information.

It is important for all of us to have the facts to define, promote, and sometimes to defend agriculture. Remember the 1989 Alar scare where the lack of information allowed rumors and inaccuracies to cause huge losses in the apple industry?

Obviously, all decisions about agriculture are not always popular or successful but at least we can reevaluate and change course based on accurate and more timely information.

Sometimes, various groups within our own agricultural community disagree on ag policy. But they all seem to agree that it is important to have factual information on the issues at hand instead of speculation, guesses, and gut feelings.

No one likes to fill out government forms. But the five-year Census of Agriculture, and other grower surveys in between, are the best way to generate the facts about agriculture. There are many other organizations that conduct surveys of growers. Some are marketing studies done solely for the benefit of a company or client who can afford to pay for the study. The resulting information is generally not made public.

The purpose of a federal statistical agency is so that important information about agriculture is not only in the hands of those who can afford to pay for it. Instead, it is public information. In this way, discussions and decisions about agriculture can be evaluated on a level playing field, where everyone has the best information possible.

Large dairies often require a huge labor force. How do dairies deal with communication management issues involving Hispanic labor? What are the challenges other producers have faced and what are their suggestions? See the next issue of Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus, geared toward large-scale dairy operations, in the Feb. 15 issue. Also scheduled: news from the Penn State Hispanic Workforce Management Conference and what's required for the survival of the Northeast dairy industry.

February Dairy Expansion Workshop Helps Producers Ensure Success

ITHACA, N.Y. — A workshop titled "Dairy Expansion: Financial Planning for Success" will take place on Tuesday, Feb. 18, from 8:15 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. in Camp Hill, Pa.

The workshop will showcase ways to evaluate a dairy's position for expansion, to size an expansion, and to estimate the profitability and success of an expansion plan. It will be a valuable educational opportunity for all who assist farms in planning expansions and for producers who are considering expansion.

Specific objectives of the workshop are to:

- Discuss methods for evaluating a current dairy business using the vast amount of information available on dairy business performance
- Show how factors such as family goals, crop production potential, labor availability, management ability, and nutrient management requirements can help determine the most profitable size and timetable for an expansion.
- Introduce the concept of investment balance as a way to maximize expansion profitability

- Describe ways to estimate the expected cow flow; cash flow; replacement needs; equity accumulation; and costs for capital, labor, and feed for the expansion

- Present a spreadsheet for use in evaluating the sensitivity of profitability to changes in expansion assumptions

- Review key financial and milk-production benchmarks for use in evaluating the success of an ongoing expansion.

Speakers include Wayne Knoblauch and Jason Kurszes, both of Cornell University, and Brad Hilty of Penn State. They have hundreds of hours of teaching experience on the subject and have evaluated financial data for thousands of dairy businesses.

The cost to attend the workshop is $95 if received or postmarked by Jan. 29, 2003, and $120 after Jan. 29. Take-home background material will be provided. Checks should be made payable to NRAES, in U.S. funds. All major credit cards are accepted; register with a credit card by fax, phone, or mail. See NRAES contact information below.

The workshop will be held at the Radisson Penn Harris Hotel and Convention Center in Camp Hill. A block of rooms has been reserved for participants until Jan. 29, 2003. Contact the hotel at (717) 763-7117 or toll-free at (800) 333-3333 and mention "dairy construction" to get the special rate of $74 plus 8 percent tax for a single or double.

The workshop is being held in conjunction with the "Building Freestall Barns and Milking Centers: Methods and Materials" conference, which will take place Feb. 18-20 at the same location. There is a separate registration fee for the conference. Contact NRAES for more information, or see the conference web page at www.nraes.org/conferences/building.html.

The workshop is being coordinated by NRAES, the Natural Resource, Agriculture, and Engineering Service. To register for the workshop or for more information, contact NRAES, PO Box 4557, Ithaca, NY 14852-4557; (607) 255-7654, fax (607)

Northeast Order Uniform Price For December 2002

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Federal Milk Marketing Order, has announced that the statistical uniform price (SUP) paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order during December 2002 is $12.24 per hundredweight ($1.05 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The producer price differential (PPD) portion of the SUP for December is $2.50 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County. The PPD ($2.50) combined with the corresponding month's Class III price ($9.74) equals the SUP ($12.24).

The SUP represents a benchmark minimum price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for farm milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The actual price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the composition of a farm's milk differs from the component benchmarks. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool. The PPD is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components and is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant(s). The

SUP and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the further away the plant(s) receiving the producers' milk are from Suffolk County, Mass.

The class prices for milk pooled in December are as follows: Class I, $13.77 (Suffolk County, Mass); Class II, $11.62; Class III, $9.74; and Class IV, $10.49. Comparable prices for December 2001 were: Class I $15.23, Class II $12.61; Class III $11.80, and Class IV price $11.79. The component values for December 2002 are protein, $1.7506 per pound; butterfat, $1.1922 per pound; other solids $0.0584 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.7282 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 2.092 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 44.6 percent of producer milk receipts. The Class I utilization was 43.8 percent in December 2001.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 15.9 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 30.6 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 8.9 percent of the total.

Youth Must Apply Now For Jersey Awards

LIBERTY (Tioga Co.) — Youth from across Pennsylvania are eligible for numerous awards and scholarships sponsored by the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association (PJCA).

Awards will be presented to youth between the ages of nine and 19 who owned a Jersey calf, heifer or cow during 2002, at the PJCA annual meeting to be conducted in Western Pennsylvania. April 11 and 12.

The deadline to enter these contests has been extended to Jan. 31.

First year Jersey owners can compete for the First Year Project Award. To be eligible, a member must be between the ages of nine and 12 and be a member of an organized 4-H club. To enter the contest, submit the official project record book along with a handwritten story entitled "My First Jersey Project Year."

The PJCA will select outstanding Jersey achievers in both the junior division, ages nine to 13, and the senior category, ages 14-19. All applicants must be the owners of one or more registered Jerseys. Entry forms for this contest are available from the youth coordinator. Five finalists from each division will be recognized at the annual meeting.

Previous winners in the junior division are not allowed to re-enter the contest. Previous winners in the senior division are eligible to re-enter, but only to be considered for the state's entry in the national achievement contest.

Jersey youth of all ages are invited to compete in the scrapbook contest.

Scrapbooks are to include the contestants' Jersey project(s) for 2002. Scrapbooks will be evaluated on the quality and the quantity of the contents. Artistic skill and creativity will also be considered.

Another contest for young Jersey owners to enter is the Youth Production Contest. Jersey juniors can nominate their registered animals that are on official DHI or DHIA test by submitting official cow records from 2002. This form is required to give officials a 305-day 2X mature equivalent value for the records submitted.

The records will be ranked according to mature equivalent pounds of protein. Contestants are only allowed to submit one record per year. Top records will be forwarded to the National Jersey Youth Production Contest.

Finally, Jersey youth who are attending college, or who are high school seniors planning to enroll in college within one year of high school graduation, can compete for one of two $200 scholarships. Applicants must have been actively involved with Jersey cattle for at least two years.

Previous scholarship winners are eligible to reapply.

To be eligible for these awards, the applicant or the applicant's family must be members of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association. Applications should be sent to Patty Rassau, Youth Director, 473 Monroe Road, Sarver, PA 16055 or to David Norman, PJCA secretary, RR 1 Box 30, Liberty, PA 16930.

Pa. Farm Show Sets Sales, Attendance Records

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Sales and attendance records were set here last week at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

According to Farm Show Director Dennis Grumbine, the food court generated in excess of $1 million in sales, "double last year," said Grumbine. The show counted up approximately 800,000-900,000 people who attended.

The rodeo scheduled at the Farm Show last Saturday was almost sold out, he noted, something the Farm Show has never done.

For the Gov. Ed Rendell inaugural ball, Farm Show had less than five days to set up a gala in the new Equine Arena. Going from "bulls to a ballroom" is another first for Farm Show, Grumbine noted.

Readers Win Ice Cream Freezers

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farming has picked winners of two White Mountain ice cream freezers at separate events.

Winner of the Pennsylvania Farm Show freezer is Ann-Louise Smith, Columbus, N.J.

Winner of the ice cream freezer awarded at the Keystone Show in York was George Feeser Jr., York.

Winners were selected from drawings conducted at Lancaster Farming booths at the two events. Congratulations!

'Adventures In Agriculture' Planned For Easton

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) — Newborn baby chicks, prize winning rabbits, and live bees performing the complexities of life in their hive will be but a sample of what you will see at the Adventures in Agriculture community event at the Palmer Park Mall in Easton.

From Friday, February 7 at 5 p.m. through Sunday, February 9 at 6 p.m., the Northampton County Farm/City Committee and the Penn State Cooperative Extension will be sponsoring this event intended to raise awareness of city and suburban residents about the significance agriculture has in our county.

Twenty-five exhibits will fill the Mall with displays about Farmer's Markets, a local vineyard, greenhouses, tractors, and even an engine club. There will be something to please everyone's taste.

Saturday evening entertainment will be provided by the Happy Boombadeers in two show-stopping performances at 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Junior Shorthorn Show Portrays Breed's Progress, Says Judge

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "I'm really impressed with the progress that this breed has made in the past ten years," said show judge Jim Gilooly.

From the muscle and structure standpoint, the breed has improved, he said, and the cattle coming into the ring were sound and "big and strong in bone structure," he said.

In addition, "four of the very best (heifers) in the show came back for the bred-and-owned class, and that indicates that the program is working and that the youth know what they're doing," he said.

From the Shorthorn classes Gilooly picked out an animal owned by Nate Tice, Lebanon, for grand champion honors.

Nate, a 4-H and FFA member who has been showing livestock for 10 years and exhibiting cattle for five years, is the son of Tom and Deb Tice, Lebanon, and is a senior at Northern Lebanon High School.

Nate also showed a hog during Farm Show competition. He is from a 30-acre farm at home, has 15 head of cattle at home.

Tice also took home grand champion honors from the Farm Show's Junior Market Beef Show.

Jason Heinlein, 14, Aliquippa, Beaver County, and "SRF Charleene Rose," a homebred heifer, took home reserve champion placing.

He has been exhibiting animals for six years and two years at the Farm Show.

Jason is from Stony Ridge Farm, a 23-acre operation with 22 head of steers and show cattle. Their reserve champion was the first Shorthorn bred at the farm.

He plans to continue showing the animal, as he travels to junior nationals, the Pennsylvania Beef Expo, and Keystone International Livestock Exposition, among others. He is the son of Ken and Terri Heinlein.

Sixty nine Shorthorn cattle were entered into the show.

The showmanship judge for the show was David Gordon, from a family farm that raises cattle and hogs. Gordon has an associate's degree from Butler Community College in Kansas, where he was on the livestock judging team.

Jim Gilooly, Washington, Ind., was the judge of the show. Gilooly produces purebred Angus and polled Herefords on his farm, besides seed corn.

He graduated from Purdue University and got his master's degree from Penn State. He has judged national shows for 12 breeds and several national junior shows.

Chester County Farmers Attend Keep Farming First Summit

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Chester County farmers were front and center for the two-day summit "Keep Farming First" last week at West Chester University.

The Chester County 2020 Trust, Chester County Economic Development Council, and Penn State Cooperative-Chester County sponsored the summit, which drew more than 260 members of the farming community plus walk-ins.

The 73 presenters represented almost every category of farmer, support service and expert, ranging from sustainable farming, bio-genetics, organic and value-added crops, estate planning, to dairy, multi-generational farms, GMOs and economic alliances.

summit. They have worked to help preserve more than 16,000 acres of agricultural land in the county.

Other speakers included Pennsylvania's Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Christian Herr and, speaking for Governor Ed Rendell, dean of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Science, Dr. Allen Kelly.

Co-chairs Nancy Mohr (Chester County 2020) and Gary Smith (CCEDC) rounded out the program. The third co-chair, Cheryl Fairbairn from the cooperative extension was both a presenter and the closing speaker on the second day.

Farmers were deeply involved in the planning process for the summit, billed as "planned for and by the farmer."

The full group presentations included Multifaceted Estate Planning, Agriculture As a Business and The Successful, Multi-generational Family Farm.

The interest in the Sustainable Agriculture breakout session, featuring Fred Kirschenmann and the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture's (PASA) Brian Snyder was so large that it was transferred from a classroom to the ballroom.

By the end of the conference, the experts themselves had gained greater familiarity with the challenges faced by farmers in this area of rising land values and increased development pressures.

Additionally, 37 farm families were honored at the summit as registered Century Farmers. Each represents a history of at least one hundred years of farming by succeeding generations of the same family. For some of the families, the two-hundred-year mark is fast approaching.

Conrad Fisher, Rocky Acres Farm, described his "Rocky Acres Salad Bar" in his discussion about grazing.

Flying in from Iowa State University, the director of the Leopold Center for Sustainable Agriculture, Fred Kirschenmann, set a can-do attitude that followed all the way through the closing reception.

His keynote speech, "How to Keep Agriculture in the Game," put responsibility for the future in the farmers' hands. He urged them to recognize opportunities and realize that different approaches to farming had more in common than they might think.

Three key goals for healthy farms and farm families were: developing new production systems that are less costly to both the farmer and the environment, developing new markets that enable farmers to produce more value and retain a larger share of that value on the farm, and developing new public policies that support communities rather than commodities.

Also involved in the opening session were the Chester County Commissioners chairman Colin Hanna, Karen Martynick, and Andrew Dinniman, who served as honorary co-chairs for the

Summit Offers Several Breakout Sessions

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — A "Keep Farming First" summit conducted recently drew more than 260 members and friends of the agriculture community to West Chester University.

Planners, land trust representatives, farmers, people interested in their food source and what is happening to the land around them, and organizers of Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) farms gathered to help find ways for farming to become more profitable to and keep land in the county.

A comprehensive overview of the event is in the article on page A33. Following is a summary of a few of the breakout sessions.

A few of Thursday and Friday's breakout sessions included alternatives and options to development, agricultural law, niche opportunities, farm loans, marketing, grazing for profit, farm business transfer, and starting farmers' markets.

Conrad Fisher, Rocky Acres Farm, Green Land, Montgomery County, and Arden Landis, Kirkwood, teamed up to teach about grazing for profit in their session.

Fisher described his "Rocky Acres Salad Bar," which includes foxtail, dandelion, and crab grass which takes over when the cool-season grasses die down, he said. He raises Herefords on his operation.

He also broadcasts rye grain which saves slower-growing grasses and allows them to grow structure and leaf, as the cattle graze the faster-growing rye. The rye grasses are also doing well in forested areas of the farm, he said.

He frost seeds March 1 and re-seeds on labor Day.

Arden Landis has been grazing his dairy herd since 1993. "We're thankful that the journey went from high production back to the grass," he said. "There are just so many benefits to the family and the animals."

Landis spends less than $10 per cow on vet bills. "The cows need to be able to do it on their own, because one cow can take more energy out of you than the other 89," he said.

This year the dairy is completely seasonal, with the last milking on Dec. 30 and the next around March 1.

"We have found that when you line the herd up with the season, and get those cows coming in with the spring grass, that is the cheapest milk. Over winter, the cheapest feed is dry cow hay.

"The more home-grown forages I have, either with grazed grass or baleage, the greater profitability," he said.

Limousin Homebreds Top Junior Show

Kristy Dietrich, Hamburg, took her homebred, "LDSK Suzie Q," to grand champion placing. A senior at Tulpehocken High School, Kristy has been exhibiting animals for ten years and has six years of experience at the Farm Show.

She is the president of FFA and co-president of her 4-H club. After graduation she plans to study animal science at either Penn State or Butler Community College in Kansas.

The showmanship judge for the show was David Gordon, who has an associate's degree from Butler Community College in Kansas, where he was on the livestock judging team.

Jim Gilooly, Washington, Ind., was the judge of the show. Gilooly produces purebred Angus and polled Herefords on his farm.

He has judged national shows for 12 breeds and several national junior shows.

works with 4-H, discussed the promotion of agricultural awareness in Pennsylvania schools.

4-H "started as a means of teaching farm children about agriculture and home economics, to teach the best practice," she said. "It has continued to be very strong in home economics and agriculture programs, but other clubs have evolved according to needs and interests," she said.

The program also extends into the classroom through partnerships with teachers.

Dawn Lawless, who teaches second grade in the Coatesville Area School District, has found ag education to be an asset to her classroom.

In her classroom, students harvest vegetables and prepare their own food, besides learning what plants need to grow and what plants are grown locally. Students also learn about the tools and machinery that farmers use, and pests and pest control.

"They need to know what these plants look like, not just the food in boxes or on shelves in the store," she said.

In the "Developer at the Door: Available Options/Alternatives," session, participants heard the testimonial of a family that sold development rights to their farm, did a like-kind exchange, and bought a 100-acre farm in Franklin County.

Presenter Christ Taylor, a realtor who has helped buy and sell 6,000 acres that has remained in agriculture, advised that farmers "need to plan and do some calculations" when a developer puts an offer on a farm. The gap between what a developer may offer and other options may not be very large in the end, he said. "Find out the value between development versus preservation," he said.

A panel discussion including, among others, Alan Bair, coordinator for the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders; Dan Gard, area marketing manager for Monsanto Dairy; Walter Moore, Wal-Moore Holsteins, Chatham; and Duane Hershey, Ar-Joy Farm, Cochranville, discussed legislation, milk prices, the questions of milk oversupply, and niche markets.

Opening the farm to visitors was another topic for the panel.

"Allowing educational opportunities on the farm makes them (farm visitors) an advocate. Think about the next generation. What things do I need to do today in the community, and business-wise, for the next generation?" asked Moore.

Ag Census

Due Date Approaches

A big "thank you" goes to those who have been so prompt in returning your ag census form. We have already received more than 20,000 completed census forms from growers, but we are required to get responses from everyone.

The forms are due back Feb. 3. If you mail it back in time, we won't have to bother you with another form mailed to your home or a phone call.

The more census forms returned before Feb. 3, the less taxpayer dollars will be spent on the Ag Census. Nationwide, it will cost about one million dollars just to mail the forms out again after Feb. 3. Then, it will cost about another $2 million to call or visit those who don't mail a form back.

Small, part-time, and hobby farms must be counted, too. They account for nearly half of the 60,000 farms in Pennsylvania.

Remember, you only have to produce $1,000 worth of agricultural products or have $1,000 worth of livestock or equine in 2002 to be counted as a farm. If you did not raise any plants or animals in 2002, make a note and return the Ag Census form. This will prevent additional mailings to your home.

Help completing the form is only a phone call away at (888) 4AG-STAT or (888) 424-7828. Call the same number for a Census form if you did not receive one.

Custom Rates

In Pennsylvania, we publish an annual report with average rates paid to custom machinery service providers. It is one of our most popular reports requested by farmers. To see the 2002 report, go to www.nass.usda.gov and click on "Publications." About 1,200 Pennsylvania farmers have received the 2003 survey asking about rates paid for custom work. Phone calls may be made to nonrespondents in mid-February.

This annual study is done at the request of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Your response allows us to publish the most accurate information possible.

2002 Crop Summary Published Jan. 10

We all know that the 2002 drought was devastating in parts of the state. We now have the final tally of crop production for last year.

Pennsylvania grain corn yields averaged 68 bushels in 2002, 30 less than 2001 and 59 bushels less than 2000. Total Pennsylvania production was 59.16 million bushels, 39 percent below 2001. Nationally, production was down 5 percent at 9.01 billion bushels.

Pennsylvania silage corn yield averaged 11.5 tons, 4.5 tons below 2001. Even though acreage cut was 14 percent above 2001, this acreage increase could not offset such low yields. Production was 6.44 million tons, down 18 percent from 2001. Nationally, the crop was up 3 percent.

Pennsylvania dry alfalfa hay production was nearly 6 percent above 2001 with an average of 2.6 tons per acre. Nationally, the crop was down 8 percent. Pennsylvania alfalfa haylage and greenchop production was 21 percent less with 5.3 green tons per acre. There were 110,000 newly seeded acres planted in 2002 for production in 2003.

Pennsylvania dry other hay production was up 2 percent from 2001, averaging a 1.6-ton yield. Nationally, the crop was up 1 percent.

The summary of all forage production (both dry and green) shows 4.77 million tons harvested on a dry equivalent basis, a 1 percent decline from 2001. Forage was harvested from 2 million acres, same as 2001. Yields in 2002 were 2.39 tons compared to 2.41 dry equivalent tons in the previous year.

Pennsylvania oat production was 7.02 million bushels, 6 percent less than 2001; average yield was 61 bushels in 2002 compared to 65 in 2001. Nationally, the crop was up 2 percent.

Pennsylvania wheat production was 9.99 million bushels, 20 percent above 2001; yields averaged 54 bushels compared to 52 in 2001. In the fall of 2002, 190,000 acres were seeded compared to 170,000 the previous year. Nationally, the 2002 crop was down 16 percent.

Barley production was 4.44 million bushels, 6 percent above 2001; average yield was 74 bushels in 2002 compared to 70 in 2001. Nationally, the crop was down 10 percent.

Soybean production was 9.1 million bushels, 34 percent less than 2001; average yield was 26 bushels in 2002 compared to 35 in 2001. Nationally, the crop was down 6 percent.

Pennsylvania fall potato production was 2.59 million CWT, 18 percent less than 2001; average yield was 185 CWT in 2002 compared to 235 in 2001. Acreage harvested in 2002 was 14,000 acres, up 4 percent from 2001. Nationally, the crop was up 6 percent for all potatoes.

Pennsylvania-type tobacco production was 4.41 million pounds, 7 percent above 2001 because of increased yields at 2100 pounds (up 40 pounds) and 100 more acres harvested in 2002 at 2,100 acres. Maryland-type tobacco production was 2.41 million pounds, 17 percent above 2001. Slightly lower yields (down 10 pounds) were offset by 200 more acres harvested at 1,300 acres. Nationally, the crop was down 10 percent for all tobacco.

2002 Hog Summary Published Dec. 30

There were 1.08 million hogs in Pennsylvania on Dec. 1, 2002, up only 20,000 head from a year earlier. Market hogs, at 955,000, were up 25,000 head while the breeding herd, at 125,000, was down 5,000 head compared to the same time last year.

Nationally, there were 58.9 million hogs on hand Dec. 1, 2002, 1 percent below a year ago. Market hogs were down 1 percent from the year before at 52.9 million head. The breeding herd was down 3 percent at 6.01 million head.

2002 Turkey Summary Published Jan. 9

Pennsylvania raised 9.9 million turkeys in 2002, up 4 percent from 2001. Growers are intending to raise the same number of birds in 2003.

Nationally, there were 272 million turkeys raised in 2002, only 370,000 more birds than in 2001. Growers intend to raise about 2 percent less birds in 2003.

Marcia Taylor To Speak At Pa. Corn And Soybean Conference

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The 2003 Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference will bring together some of Pennsylvania's top corn and soybean growers to hear some topics on how they can better plan for the future and improve their bottom line. This year's program will kick off at 9 a.m., Feb. 7 at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

The featured speaker at this year's conference is Marcia Zarley Taylor. Taylor is a Des Moines, Iowa native with 20 years experience in farm policy, agricultural finance, and environmental reporting. Since 1990, Taylor has served as editor of Top Producer magazine. Marcia recently was awarded the 2002 Jesse Neal Award for her series entitled "Brazil the Competitor You Can't Ignore" published in Top Producer.

In her presentation, she will discuss not only the grain production potential of Brazil but also recent investments in grain processing and hog and poultry production and what we must do now to remain competitive.

The morning program includes speakers on soy beverages and the Penn State football team, how to maximize the quality of corn and soybeans, and discussion of how the movie "Signs" was produced using a Pennsylvania corn field.

Our afternoon sessions will feature some in depth workshops on the Farm Bill and Crop Insurance, again with several top speakers.

Sam Willet, nationally recognized expert on the Farm Bill with the National Corn Growers Association, is another of our guests this year. Willet will describe and explain the new Farm Bill components that have direct financial impact on Pennsylvania farmers with the help of Penn State extension agent John Berry. Willet and Berry will be using real Pennsylvania examples to illustrate the local effects of this program.

A distinguished panel of crop insurance experts will be on hand this year to explore how to more fully utilize this part of our risk management efforts. Insurance agency representatives will give us information from the perspective of the actual product users. Gene Gantz and Cliff Parker represent the USDA, Risk Management Agency and will supply answers to our questions on the formulation and implementation of crop insurance regulations and policy. Bring your questions and concerns. This session is sure to be a lively discussion of this important topic.

The Corn and Soybean Conference is a joint program sponsored by the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association, The Pennsylvania Soybean Board, and Penn State Extension. Registration for the meeting is $20 and reservations can be made by contacting the Department of Crop and Soil Sciences at Penn State at (814) 865-2543 before Feb. 1.

For more information, contact Greg Roth in the Department of Crop and Soil Sciences at Penn State at (814) 863-1018.

Dairylea, DFA Urge Further Consideration Of Pooling Proposal

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) and Dairylea Cooperative are asking members of the Pennsylvania legislature to help slow down the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) pooling proposal. The two cooperatives share a position that the PMMB is moving too fast and it needs to put further thought and analysis into the proposal.

The PMMB has proposed pooling 45 percent of its Class I over-order premium among all Pennsylvania dairy farmers delivering milk to a Pennsylvania milk plant.

DFA's Northeast and Mideast Areas and Dairylea are asking the legislature to send the proposal back to the PMMB and to urge the board to work with the industry to better understand the implications of pooling. Although some other stakeholders may outright oppose pooling, DFA and Dairylea have not come to that conclusion at this point. Like some other stakeholders and individual dairy farmers, the two cooperatives simply want the opportunity to further review the proposal at the very least.

"The Milk Marketing Board's pooling proposal will have significant implications on a number of farms and other dairy businesses," said Ed Gallagher, vice president of planning and regulatory policy for Dairylea. "It may change the way the milk is marketed in the state and, at this point, it is not clear whether it will have a positive or negative impact on Pennsylvania's dairy industry."

Gallagher noted that changes in milk marketing practices, such as the use of out-of-state warehouses to get around PMMB pricing and an ongoing lawsuit filed against the Board by an out-of-state dealer, may undermine the strength of the board's pricing ability.

"If pooling is to go into effect, these changes on the commonwealth's dairy industry and its overall economy should be understood ahead of time," he said. "Unfortunately, the Milk Marketing Board has chosen to move the pooling regulation along without the appropriate exploration of these changes."

Spanish For Dairymen Courses Set

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) and CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The Penn State Cooperative Extension Capital Region Dairy Team has organized two Spanish for Dairymen courses that will begin on Thursday, Feb. 6, 2003 and will continue for twelve consecutive Thursdays.

The beginner and intermediate courses will be customized to address specific vocabulary, terms and phrases that are commonly used on dairy farms. The main objective of these programs is to teach the participants how to effectively communicate with their Hispanic dairy farm workers. Dairy farm owners, managers and employees who work with Hispanic farm workers or who are considering this alternative will greatly benefit from the program.

The beginner course will be conducted at the Cumberland County Cooperative Extension Office in Carlisle from 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. No background or experience in speaking Spanish is necessary for the participants of this program. This course has been developed to expose you to the Spanish language and teach you how to speak basic, day-to-day Spanish on a dairy farm.

The intermediate course will take place at the Farm Credit Office in Chambersburg from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. A basic familiarity with Spanish is suggested for participants of this program. You do not need to be fluent in Spanish to attend this course, but you need to have some very basic exposure to the language.

The instructor for these programs, Leticia Betances, is a native Mexican. She has taught our previous Spanish for Dairymen programs and has worked in a large dairy processing plant in Mexico.

The cost of the entire 12-week program, including all books, materials, CD/cassette tapes and instruction is $300. The promise to all committed participants is that by the end of these courses, they will have greatly advanced their ability to speak Spanish.

To register for or to request more information about the Spanish for Dairymen programs, please contact Vinton Smith at (888) 472-0261, ext. 312 or by email to HYPERLINK mailto:vsmith@psu.edu vsmith@psu.edu no later than Jan. 31.

Land O'Lakes Calls WTO's Canada Ruling A Victory For U.S. Producers

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc. has termed the World Trade Organization's (WTO) recent ruling that Canada's current dairy export system is in violation of international trade rule limits a victory for U.S. dairy producers. The WTO decision came after five years of dispute and will require Canada to end its current practice of subsidizing dairy products exported to the U.S.

"The WTO decision is a victory for U.S. dairy farmers and supporters of continued trade negotiations," said Land O'Lakes director of government relations, Steven Krikava. "Canada's recent decision to accept this ruling illustrates the power of the dispute resolution process to rid practices that disrupt the export market."

Land O'Lakes has been working alongside other national milk organizations and the administration on behalf of U.S. dairy producers, providing technical support throughout this long-running dispute which sets an important precedent by defining export subsidies under the WTO rules.

"Land O'Lakes has long been an advocate of international trade rules eliminating export subsidies, trade distorting systems of internal supports, and non-tariff trade barriers," Krikava said. "The WTO's decision is not an attack on Canada's dairy farmers, but is simply an effort to force the Canadian government to abide by international trade rules when it seeks to find export markets for its dairy products."

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — At the 75th Annual National FFA Convention conducted in November in Louisville, Ky., the Fort Defiance FFA dairy cattle dairy evaluation team from the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia placed first overall in a field of 44 teams. They defeated second place Georgia FFA by 38 points. Each team member received a plaque, gold pin, key chain, and $1,000 scholarship donated by sponsors through the National FFA Foundation.

The National FFA dairy competition consists not only of dairy judging and oral reasons, but dairy records evaluation and herd management decision-making; it encompasses many aspects of managing a successful dairy operation. The winning team members included Adam Hostetler, Adam Shank, and the brother-sister duo of Aaron and Ashley Shiflett.

Adam Hostetler graduated from Fort Defiance High School (FDHS) in June and is now operating his own dairy farm a few miles from his parent's operation, Milky Way Farm, in Weyer's Cave, Va. Adam was also the 2002 Virginia Dairy Production Entrepreneurship Proficiency Award winner. He received a gold rating at the competition in Louisville and placed 18th overall.

Adam Shank, a senior at FDHS, hails from Mt. Solon, Va., where he works daily on his uncle's farm, helping with milking, feeding, and crop work. Adam received a silver rating in the contest as a first-year judge.

Aaron and Ashley Shiflett are both active on their family farm, River Bend, in New Hope, Va. The Shiflett siblings were both members of the 2002 Virginia 4-H dairy judging teams, and have been active in both 4-H and the Virginia Holstein Association. Aaron is a senior and Ashley is a sophomore at Fort Defiance High. They each earned gold ratings in Louisville, placing third and 14th overall, respectively.

The students practiced for several months starting in late April, studying everything from dairy cattle evaluation and pedigree evaluation to linear scoring and sire selection. They studied dairy management tests and learned to use DHIA herd records in making culling, breeding, and treatment decisions.

Coaches for the team were former agriculture teachers at FDHS; Terry Lam, now farming with her husband in Bridgewater, Va., and Mary Beth Grove, who now resides in Lancaster, and serves as a dairy agent with Penn State Extension.

Lancaster County Weekly Cattle

New Holland, Pa.
Report Supplied By USDA
Friday, January 24, 2003

|           | CATTLE | CALVES |
|-----------|--------|--------|
| THIS WEEK | 2178   | 1639   |
| LAST WEEK | 2538   | 1639   |
| LAST YEAR | 2163   | 1771   |

Compared to last week, slaughter steers sold 1.00-2.00 higher. Demand was very good all week, especially for the right kind, and it also helps when there are some well-fed steers on offer. There are still some producers that continue to roll the dice by hauling steers in weighing well over 1500 lbs. It is definitely a gamble to market cattle this way, although some of the heavies are trading in the upper 70.00 range, but remember, some are in the lower 60.00 money as well. Producers are still bewildered when they watch their steers tip the scales weighing from 1450-1550 lbs, as cattle have performed exceptionally well this winter in Lancaster County. Holstein heifers were not well tested early in the week, but prices were noted with a higher undertone late in the week. Holstein steers were also in light supply early, however, a very good run late in the week sold very well. Prices for the better quality steers ranged from 63.00-68.00, which was a definitely a higher undertone. Slaughter cows sold firm to 4.00 higher, with the bulk of the increase on the late week run. The Monday and Tuesday sale did have moderate increases, trending firm to 1.00 higher. However, late in the week buyers came in with their guns blazing, as cows boasted a 1.00-3.00 increase. The Western direct feed yards have moved some steers from 78.00-79.00 as of Thursday evening, although the bulk have yet to trade. This is a full 1.00 lower than last week, with the Board faltering slightly late in the week as it dips below 80.00. Slaughter bulls sold fully 2.00-3.00 higher on very good, high quality runs. This week's reported supply included 30 percent steers, 7 percent heifers, 48 percent cows, 4 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

Holstein bull calves suitable for special fed veal barns sold 2.00-20.00 lower early in the week, trading 10.00-40.00 higher on very good end-of-the-week demand. Holstein heifers sold sharply higher all week as prices remain in the 400.00-500.00 range for the good ones. This week the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture graded 939 calves in Lancaster County, which is only around 60 head less than last week.

Pennsylvania Grazing And Forage Conference To Feature Roche Brothers Of Ireland

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Roche Brothers (Tom and John) of Ireland will bring an Irishman's perspective on grazing to the United States as the featured speakers at the 2003 Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference, March 5 and 6, at the Holiday Inn, Grantville.

The conference will offer numerous presentations and discussions focusing on grazing and forages. It is being co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council and the Pennsylvania Grazing Research and Education Center. Major financial contributors are King's Agri-Seeds of Ronks and the Pennsylvania Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative (GLCI).

The Roches' farm is located in Kerry, Ireland where Tom is using a leader/follower system to graze 100 lactating Holstein cows with 300 ewes and lambs. The farm comprises 100 acres of owned and 100 acres of rented grassland. His production average is about 15,000 pounds of milk per cow on mostly a grass diet. His main objective is to maximize return per acre and keep costs to an absolute minimum. The brothers are also involved in a 3,000-cow grazing dairy farm in Southern New Zealand.

John Roche was grazing in south west Ireland until becoming a member of the Nutrition Research team of the Dairying Research Corporation. He is located in New Zealand where he is involved in a research program to look at Holstein-Friesian cows of U.S. and N.Z. ancestry to define the correct cow for grazing.

John Roche has considerable experience as a farmer and researcher in Ireland, Australia and New Zealand and is well published in the farming literature in all three countries. He says, "If I was to sum up my research work over the years into a single sentence it would be determining the most appropriate pasture management system for seasonal calving systems and refining nutrition recommendations from confinement feeding systems for pasture-fed cows."

As part of the conference there will be a trade show where company representatives will be on hand to showcase what is new with forages and grazing technologies.

For registration information contact any local cooperative extension office, NRCS office or Dick Hann or Lisa Crytser at (814) 865-2543.

Vo-Tech Students Present Ag Science Projects At Farm Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Students from select Pennsylvania vocational technology high schools presented various agriculturally related science projects at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Milton Hershey School presenters Pamela Kohl and Danielle Vance explained their scientific studies of the effects of pinching on poinsettias. According to their presentation, pinching the main stem of a poinsettia plant creates more stems to grow which produces an overall fuller plant with more flowers and larger leaves in comparison to those plants in their experiment that were not pinched.

Lawrence Fournier, also from Hershey, demonstrated a method of pruning a Juniper Bonsai tree in which wires were placed on the larger branches to train the trees to grow in a certain direction or style.

Battlefield FFA chapter in Gettysburg demonstrated advances in biotechnology through tissue culturing. Students Lindsey Kammerer, Curtis McFadden and Cytha Stottlemeyer cultured a lily bulb by removing plant tissue from the fleshy leaves or scales that surround the bulb. Then they placed the tissue into a petri-dish to be incubated in a greenhouse environment for approximately three weeks.

According to the students' presentation, 3,000 plants can be cultured from one bulb. They said such advancements in biotechnology could one day solve world hunger.

Judges Evaluate Shearing, Design, Weaving And Speed At Contest

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Sale Arena buzzed with not only a large crowd but also the sound of whirring clippers — a sound that marked the beginning of the 20th annual Sheep to Shawl Contest Wednesday evening of Farm Show week.

Seven teams of five or six — a shearer, three spinners, a weaver and perhaps a carder — competed in the event.

After a shearer quickly clipped the sheep, the best of the wool was chosen by the rest of the team, who went to work carding, spinning, and weaving the seven shawls that were submitted to three judges for final placing.

Once the best of fleece is separated out, the team begins carding the wool. "Flicking" open the ends of the wool makes it easier to spin without catching, according to contestant Wini Labrecque.

Labrecque chooses the cleanest, longest locks out of the pile of wool at their feet.

"The same length locks makes spinning more consistent," Labrecque said. However, were she not in competition, "all of the fleece is usable except the wool with debris."

The Butler County Pedalers chose a Romney for the evening's contest, since "it has nice length to it and is soft and spins easily," said Labrecque.

After carding, the wool is spun and moves quickly to the weaving step, where the weavers carefully re-create the colors and patterns of a shawl already submitted to the contest and on display.

The look of the shawl may be inspired by nature, as in the example of the shawl created by the Butler County Pedalers, or by art, as in the Yorktowne Spinners' team shawl.

The creator of the Pedaler's shawl was inspired by a light snow dusted over the colors of fall leaves.

The dyed colors, according to the team's description, represented the leaves. The white and neutral tones of the wool were then reminiscent of the snow.

Kris Peters, weaver for the Yorktowne Spinners team, saw a Monet painting "and I thought, 'that's it,'" she said. "The way the colors blended" in the green-and-lavender painting of lilies motivated Peters to recreate the painting in the shawl.

Three judges evaluate criteria in five categories: shearing, spinning, design, weaving, and speed.

The shearer is judged on speed, lack of second cuts, and uniformity. The spinners are judged on not only individual but also group criteria, as the spinning should relate to the design of the shawl. Members attempted to spin evenly to produce a uniform product.

The design of the shawl counts for a substantial percentage of the team's score, as judges consider design originality, weave difficulty, softness, and finished fringe. Judges also look at color coordination between warp (the yarns lengthwise in a loom) and weft (wool yarn interlaced by the weaver into the already-positioned warp).

For the weaver, judges observe evenness in the weaving. They may probe the salvage edges for evenness. Speed was also on the weavers' minds, as points were awarded accordingly to when the team finished (first, second, etc.).

Also during the contest, spinning and weaving demonstrations were conducted by the Lancaster Spinners and Weavers Guild. A fashion show of woolen products, including shawls, sweaters, hats, and jackets also entertained the audience as the teams worked.

The Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen, Amber Shollenberger, and her court spoke about the commonwealth's sheep and wool industry.

Additional awards were as follows: shearer award, Nate Good; fleece award, Butler County Pedalers; team's choice, Kittens in a Basket; weaver's award, Wini Labrecque; and premium spinning group, Penn Wheels.

The shawls were auctioned off at the end of the contest.

Overall, first place went to Yorktowne Spinners, York County. The shawl brought $1,600 and was sold to Jan Frushone Gibas, who works at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement.

According to extension leader and 4-H leader Linda Spahr, the team will donate a portion of the sale to the York County 4-H Fiber Club. The club, begun last year, spent the first year learning "how to produce a good fleece and take care of the animal producing it," said Spahr.

However this year 4-H members may get some hands-on experience as Spahr is hoping to purchase small looms. "Kids are getting very interested in weaving and using looms," she said. "We'll probably buy hand looms that the kids could take home and learn how to make socks or scarves."

Second place went to Penn Wheels, Bucks County. The shawl sold for $400. Kittens in a Basket, Bradford County, took third place and sold their shawl for $325. Fourth place went to Carl and the Not-So-Lazy Kates, who sold their shawl for $950. The fifth place shawl, bringing $650, was made by Butler County Pedalers. Sixth place winners, Eweniquely 60 Percent Man Made, sold their shawl for $500. The seventh place shawl sold for $375 and was made by the Fleece To Shuttle team.

Marlesa Coolbaugh, Canton, part of Bradford County's "Kittens in a Basket" team, worked against the clock to finish the shawl during the competition.

Team "Kittens in a Basket" put the finishing touches on the shawl by cutting the fringes.

Nate Good, Windsor, did a repeat performance as he again captured the shearer's award.

Kristen Brumbach, Dover, helped to model wool products during the evening's wool fashion show.

Nate Good, Windsor, and Sandra Britcher, Airville, are both part of the winning Yorktowne Spinners group.

Wini Labrecque, Cabot, Butler County, works at "flicking" locks of wool to open the ends, which "makes it easier to spin without catching," said Labrecque.

Susan Lightner, Harrisville, part of Butler County's "Fleece To Shuttle" group, pulls out fiber for the turning wheel to "draw it to the width I want it to be," she said.

People often ask what weight loss plan is the best?

The answer is that no one plan for losing weight is best for everyone. If you are not physically active, regular exercise may help you lose fat and keep it off. If you eat too much, decreasing your calorie intake may help.

Long-term success usually depends upon new and better life-long habits of both physical activity and eating.

There is only one way to lose weight and that's to use up more calories than you take in. Do not try to lose weight too fast. A gradual loss of 1/2 to 1 pound a week is what's recommended—it gives you time to build good eating and exercise habits. Generally, to lose 1/2 pound a week, either decrease calorie intake by about 250 calories a day, or burn up those 250 calories by increasing physical activity, or do some of both.

Another question that people ask is what's the best way to change "what" and "how much" you eat?

It depends on your eating habits. If rich desserts are a problem, you can opt for no dessert, a very small portion, or fresh fruit instead.

If topping on your baked potato is a source of extra calories, what's best for you is no topping, less topping, plain yogurt or fat free products instead of sour cream?

If you're used to the flavor of whole milk but want less fat and fewer calories, what's best for you—directly switching from whole milk to skim or trying low-fat milk first?

The important thing is to make some changes that will make a difference over the long run.

Include diet essentials: fruits, vegetables, breads, and cereals, lean meat, poultry or fish, low-fat milk and milk products. Don't cut calories too low. Getting enough of the nutrients you need is difficult in diets of less than 1200 calories.

Some foods have more calories than others. Foods that are high in fat are generally highest in calories.

Fat provides 9 calories per gram while both carbohydrate and protein provide 4 calories per gram.

Alcohol provides 7 calories per gram.

Choose low-fat foods most often.

Don't skip meals. Your body operates 24 hours a day and usually works best when it receives food energy (calories) in moderate amounts at regular intervals.

It's a good idea to eat before you start your main activities of the day.

Eat slowly! Give your body time to realize you've eaten so you don't overeat.

Become more active. Try to improve your endurance, strength and flexibility while decreasing body fat.

Penn State's New Weigh of Life (NWOL) Weight Management Program stresses the importance of choosing and eating healthy foods in moderate portions. To obtain more information about this series of classes, contact your local county extension office.

At Risk For Diabetes?

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Seventeen million Americans have diabetes, a disease with many life-threatening complications. These complications include heart disease, stroke, leg and feet amputations, blindness, kidney disease, and nerve damage.

Diabetes is a silent disease. You can have it for years and not know it. During this time, harm to your eyes, nerves, and kidneys may have been going on for seven to 10 years.

There are many symptoms of diabetes. A person can experience one or more of the following symptoms:

- blurred vision/recent changes in vision
- being very hungry or thirsty all the time
- frequent urination
- tingling or numbness in legs, feet, or fingers
- being sleepy and tired
- frequent skin infections and slow healing of cuts on hands and feet

Your risk goes up as you get older, gain too much weight, or if you do not stay active.

Grain Family Secrets: The Truth About Carbohydrates

PARKER, Colo. — It is no secret — America has a weight problem. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports 61 percent of Americans are either overweight or obese.

Why?

We are eating more. Since the 1950s, the average daily consumption for an American adult has increased by 500 calories.

While carbohydrates are being blamed for the fattening of America, the truth is, no single food or circumstance can be blamed for this growing health concern. The key to healthy weight management is to follow the proven sound principles of the Food Guide Pyramid and to increase physical activity.

Benefits of a High-Carbohydrate, Low-Fat Lifestyle

A June 2002 U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) study, based on food intake data from 10,014 adults across the United States, cataloged the advantages of a high-carbohydrate, low-fat diet.

- Participants on high-carbohydrate diets consumed 300 fewer calories per day than those on very low-carbohydrate diets.

- Adults who ate high-carbohydrate diets were more likely to be in the normal weight range, with the lowest average body mass index.

- High-carbohydrate diets were indicated to be more nutritious than low-carbohydrate diets, providing greater intake of vitamin A, C, carotene, and folate, and the minerals calcium, magnesium, and iron.

Researchers collected data on National Weight Control Registry (NWCR) members, whose members are required to have lost a minimum of 30 pounds and maintained the weight loss for a minimum of one year. On average, each of the 3,000+ registrants have lost 71 pounds and kept the weight off for more than six years.

- Factors reported as contributing to NWCR success include eating a low-fat, high-carbohydrate diet, monitoring food intake and body weight, and maintaining high levels of physical activity.

Eleven obese men were placed on a low-fat, high-fiber diet as part of a three-week University of California-Los Angeles study to see if their heart disease risk could be significantly lowered in a short amount of time. During the test, the men received fewer than 10 percent of calories from fat, 15 to 20 percent from protein, and they could eat all the whole-wheat bread, pasta, fruit, and vegetables they wanted.

- In October 2002, researchers revealed after just three weeks on the low-fat, high-fiber diet, seven men had normal blood pressure, had reduced their cholesterol by 19 percent, and insulin levels by 46 percent.

Listen to the Experts

A University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center study showed participants on high-protein diets displayed increases in blood acid loads as much as 90 percent. Protein byproducts caused high blood acid levels which were not countered by carbohydrates' alkaline byproducts and increased the risk for kidney stones and bone loss. (Source: The American Journal of Kidney Diseases, August 2002).

In late 2001, the American Heart Association's (AHA) Nutrition Committee re-

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In the world of local fairs and commodity contests, the name "Martin" dominates the circuit almost as much as the "Petty" name has dominated auto racing.

The 2003 Pennsylvania Vegetable Bread Contest continued a winning streak for the Martin family of Lancaster. Deborah Martin of Conestoga won first place for her Sweet Potato-Zucchini Bread with Caramel Pecan glaze. Her mother, Dorothy Martin of Ephrata received a fifth place ribbon in the contest that attracted 58 entries.

The Martins have been entering the commodity contest for years. Between the mother and daughter duo, they have captured 41 first place ribbons, including the latest. What began as a hobby has now become a way of life for the pair.

"It's become an obsession over the last five or six years," Deborah joked.

The intensity has paid off, however. Deborah placed in the Shoofly Pie Contest, Apple Pie Contest, and first in the Vegetable Bread Contest sponsored by the Vegetable Marketing Program and conducted Jan. 16 in conjunction with the 87th Pennsylvania Farm Show.

A panel of five judges evaluated the breads. The only qualification for entries was that the bread won first place at a county fair and contained at least one cup of a Pennsylvania grown vegetable. That ingredient could be any vegetable from beets, to eggplant, to garlic. The 58 breads were judged on appearance, texture, and flavor.

The following is Martin's winning recipe:

Sweet Potato Zucchini Bread
2 cups all-purpose flour
3 eggs
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 teaspoon baking soda
1½ cups grated fresh zucchini
¼ teaspoon baking powder
1½ cups grated fresh sweet potato
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped pecans
2 cups sugar
½ cup oil

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Butter and flour 9x13 glass loaf pan.

Sift the first five ingredients into a bowl. Beat sugar, oil, eggs and vanilla to blend in a large bowl. Mix in the zucchini and sweet potato. Add dry ingredients and the pecans and stir well.

Pour batter into a buttered and floured pan. Bake for 1 hour and 20 minutes.

Brown Sugar Caramel Glaze:
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons brown sugar
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
3 tablespoons cream
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Place glaze ingredients in a small pan over low heat. Let boil 1 minute. Remove from heat and spoon over bread. Drizzle with 6 melted caramels. Add ½ cup chopped pecans.

leased a scientific advisory warning against the uses of high-protein diets for weight loss. The AHA said there was no scientific evidence the diets, including Atkins', Zone, Stillman, Protein Power, or Sugar Busters, led to long-term weight loss. According to the AHA, the increased consumption of animal protein, which is high in saturated fat, and the decrease in consumption of vegetables and fiber, which contain essential nutrients and help reduce cholesterol, can contribute to coronary heart disease, diabetes, and stroke.

Neither the American Diabetes Association nor the American Dietetic Association recommends using foods' glycemic index as a weight-loss program. In fact, the American Diabetes Association's position statement acknowledges that although various starches do have different glycemic responses, from a clinical perspective, first priority should be given to the total amount of carbohydrates. People tend to eat meals, not single foods, so the glycemic index of a food is not practical information that can be used in weight management.

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Some art inspires awe, some art moves one to meditate, some art amuses, some art provokes discussion, like the giant butter-sculpture cow on display at the recent Pennsylvania Farm Show. Some art is unexplainable, like lots of the creations signed by Picasso.

And, there's art that's really cool.

Like ice sculpture. Now, there's an art form that causes folks to chill out.

Shaping ice into artistic forms can't be all that easy. It takes patience, proper tools, and some genuine training to learn the techniques to shape and shave it, while avoiding accidents which might cause the crystal-clear raw material to shatter and start melting in your socks.

Unless, of course, you are Mother Nature, sculpting ice art around here in the coldest January in years. And all the art supplies she needs are moisture, temperature changes and an interesting base from which to construct.

Windows in the dairy barn transformed to a sort of art gallery overnight early last week, as Mother Nature and her brush-wielding assistant Jack Frost swirled ice designs on the long rows of glass. Why do two windows, side by side, or above and below, facing the same directional exposure inside and out, freeze into vastly different patterns? That's always been a puzzle to me.

We're all familiar with the classic fringe of icicles that ornaments all sorts of outside places when moisture marries with freeze-n-thaw temperature swings. They add a whimsical "gingerbread" effect to houses, barns, sheds and fences.

But, occasionally the effect is more amusing. During a recent round of machine shed cleanup, an old truck was piled full of stuff to be disposed of, then parked along the edge of the road on an angle. Apparently, just enough moisture melted one day on the inside of the bumper to ooze to the lower-hanging edge and begin dripping off, growing a single, long icicle poking down from the edge of the bumper. The glittering icicle lends a snaggle-tooth effect to the old battered truck.

Admiring ice art sparkling in the morning sunshine one day last week, I spied a distinctly curved icicle. An artistic shape, it had formed on one of the numerous maple saplings that always manage to take root in the flower beds each year. This youngster was probably a 2-year-old, rooted under the overhang of the springhouse roof. Dried onto the dormant sapling were the remains of a morning glory volunteer which had curled its tendrils up and around the baby tree last summer.

As snow had melted off the springhouse roof, it dripped onto the maple and its volunteer vine. The droplets had oozed along the curving shape of the dried plant tendrils, growing and shaping a thick icicle identical to the angles of the vine.

But our most stunning ice art is in the meadow, where a four-inch PVC pipe drains the runoff from one pond into the next one several feet lower. Bone dry for most of the last year, the pipe is now transferring gallons of water per minute, cascading out of the pipe in a drop of a couple feet to the pond surface.

Splashes and splatters from the pipe's waterfall have built up over the last several weeks into a hollow, crystalline ice formation. About five inches across at the top, it widens to a foot or better in diameter at the bottom, resembling a misty-white bridal veil. Water still pours through within the shape, adding an element of life and movement to our smaller and frozen version of Bridal Veil Falls.

Despite this wickedly-frigid winter, warmth will ultimately convert the cool icy art to an alternate entertainment form even cooler to little kids.

Mud puddles.
Bring on the mud.

TOUGH & NIMBLE

When Guil Waddell isn't using his AGCO ST45 compact tractor to mow grass or haul round bales on his 25-acre horse ranch, he's putting it to work as owner of GTW Landscaping in Rougemont, NC

"With the price of gas the way it is, I don't want to be towing a 5,000- to 7,000-pound tractor around on a trailer," he says. "That's one reason I like the AGCO compact so well. It has enough power and weight to handle heavy 3-point hitch implements; yet it's light enough to haul around on the job."

With an engine horsepower rating of 44 1 and shipping weight of more than 3,700 pounds, the ST45 is the heavyweight powerhouse of compact tractors. To learn more about the productivity, reliability and operator comfort that only an AGCO ST series tractors can provide, stop by and see us today

APPLE CRANBERRY TEA RING

Bread:

- 3 cups all-purpose flour, divided
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1¼-ounces active dry yeast
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup milk
- ¼ cup water
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 egg

Egg Wash:

- 1 tablespoon water
- 1 egg white

Filling:

- ½ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 1 cup apple, peeled, thinly sliced
- 1 cup dried cranberries
- ¾ cup toasted nuts, chopped

Glaze:

- ½ cup powdered sugar
- 1-2 tablespoons orange juice
- 1 teaspoon orange zest

Blend 1 cup flour with next four ingredients; set aside. Heat milk, water, and butter until warm. Pour into large bowl. Add flour mixture.

Beat on low 30 seconds; add egg. Beat on medium 3 minutes. Stir in remaining flour.

Knead on floured surface 5-8 minutes until smooth and elastic. Place dough in oiled bowl; turn to grease. Cover; let rise in warm place until doubled in size, about one hour.

Punch down dough on lightly floured surface. Roll into 15x12-inch rectangle. Blend egg white and water; brush over dough. Refrigerate remaining egg wash.

Combine sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle over dough. Top with apple, cranberries, and nuts. Starting with long side of dough, roll into log, pinch to seal. Form into ring; overlap and seal ends. Place seam side down on greased baking sheet.

Using scissors, cut ring from outside through all dough layers to within 1-inch of center. Makes 12 cuts, 2-inches apart. Twist each cut section ¼ turn so cut side faces downward forming pinwheel. Cover with damp cloth and let rise in warm place until indentation remains after touching side, 30 minutes. Brush with remaining egg wash.

Bake in preheated 375-degree oven 30-40 minutes until golden brown; cool.

Blend powdered sugar, orange juice, and orange zest. Drizzle over cooled tea ring. Serves 12.

- 1 cup cooking oil
- 4 eggs, beaten

Mix dry ingredients. Add liquids. Bake at 400 degrees for 10-12 minutes. Keeps in refrigerator for six weeks.

Diet That Works For Everyone

Would you like to try a diet that will help you lose weight and keep it off for life?

Most of us would like to know this "secret", but many of us already do: In order to lose weight (or maintain weight, depending on your goal), one must decrease what is taken in (food and drink) and increase what is put out (exercise or physical activity).

However, when we decrease what we eat and drink, we need to replace with nutrient-dense foods, foods that are good sources of certain nutrients, to ensure we are getting what we need. That, coupled with trying to do 30-60 minutes of physical activity most days of the week, may lead us in search of an alternative diet that promises a quick and easy fix.

Every day there seems to be a new diet book or trendy diet sweeping the country.

We can discover these on TV, on the Internet, at bookstores, health food stores, or co-workers. No matter the source, they need to be reviewed before trying. These diets or products can be ineffective and unsafe for a number of reasons. They have one thing in common: they are fad diets. These diets gain popularity over a short time and may not have a strong scientific basis. Review this fad diet checklist to alert you to unsafe practices you may find out there.

Guarantees fast weight loss or extreme results Does not incorporate exercise into the diet program.

Emphasizes pills, miracle foods, or books that you have to purchase.

Uses people's testimonials over science such as "I ate as much as I wanted."

Claims that the diet can do things such as melt fat away or cure diseases.

Recommends only one type of food and eliminates other food groups.

Focuses on certain combinations of foods or avoiding combinations of food.

Advices fasting or skipping meals.

Does not tell you to talk with your doctor before starting the plan.

Allows you to avoid making any lifestyle changes.

Offers a "money back guarantee" not real results.

Does not fully describe how the products work.

Emphasizes results.

A safe and effective weight maintenance or weight loss program is a sensible plan that does require behavior changes. This lifestyle approach involves decreasing calories (what we eat and drink) and increasing the calories that we use (physical activity or exercise). Remember, busy is not the same thing as physically active.

This approach does take time and the modest weight loss of 1-2 pounds a week is safe and achievable. It is a plan that one can realistically follow throughout their life, concentrates on weight loss to improve health and well being, encourages variety and enjoyment in eating, and leaves room for indulgences at times.

It advises to enjoy all foods and beverages in moderation. It is much more of an approach than a "diet."

The word diet originally referred to what one ate and now it is used to describe what one does not eat.

In the United States we are facing a population that is 61 percent overweight or obese with high levels of chronic health problems such as diabetes, heart disease, and high blood pressure. Though even modest weight loss is recommended to help prevent or maintain these conditions, people should approach weight loss with reasonable goals, a safe and effective approach, and a positive outlook to enjoying and trying new foods and ways to keep active.

QUESTION — Mary Templon, Grantsville, W.V., writes that she canned sauerkraut in jars this past summer, but the seal broke by six weeks, and the sauerkraut got brown and went bad. QUESTION — A reader wants low-fat recipes and diabetic recipes that other readers have tried and liked.

QUESTION — A Narvon reader writes that she accidentally discarded two recipes, which she had clipped from this column, that her family really liked. One recipe was for waffles, and the lady who had submitted it wrote that she sold them at a stand when she was young. The other recipe was for biscuits that used cold butter cut into the flour. Anyone know to which recipes she is referring? Please send in to be reprinted.

QUESTION — June Martin, Oxford, N.J., wants a recipe to make venison hot dogs.

ANSWER — For Frank Bonk, Perth Amboy, N.J., who wanted fresh geese, a Lebanon reader writes that he has fresh geese and will clean if desired. Call (717) 949-3115.

ANSWER — Jane Freed, Mertztown, requested two different methods to make homemade sauerkraut: to can and one that ferments in a crock. Thanks to Doris Brenzle, Shippensburg, for sending instructions for both methods. She writes that making sauerkraut requires a little work, but the end product is delicious. Make and enjoy.

Sauerkraut (Jar Type on Counter)

Remove and discard outer leaves of cabbage heads. Cut in halves or quarters, discard core. Shred 5 pounds cabbage with a shredder or sharp knife. It should be no thicker than a dime. Sprinkle 3½ tablespoons salt over shredded cabbage and mix thoroughly by hand.

Pack cabbage into clean glass jars, pressing down with a wooden spoon. Fill to within 1½-2-inches from jar top. Be sure juice covers cabbage. Wipe off jar top, put on lids, but do not seal tightly. Set filled jars in shallow pans or on folded newspapers. The brine may overflow during fermentation. Keep at room temperature (70 degrees) for top-quality sauerkraut. Skim off film, if directions followed carefully, little or no film should form. Keep cabbage covered with brine. If necessary, add more weak brine made by dissolving 1½ tablespoons salt in 1 quart water. Let ferment about 10 days or until liquid settles and bubbles no longer rise to the surface. If sauerkraut is to be used soon, wipe mouths of jars and seal tightly. If desired to keep a long time, make sure jars are full to within 1-inch from top. Wipe off rims. Adjust lids, process in boiling water bath (212 degrees) quarts for 30 minutes. For 20-25 pounds cabbage, use ½ pound salt. Makes 8-10 quarts.

Crock Sauerkraut

Prepare cabbage same as for jar method: 5 pounds shredded cabbage mixed thoroughly with 3½ tablespoons salt. Pack firmly and evenly with a potato stomper or your fist. Repeat shredding 5 pounds cabbage and adding 3½ tablespoons salt, mixing and stomping thoroughly until crock is filled five inches from top. Make sure cabbage is covered with juice. Cover cabbage with a clean white cloth, tucking down against the inside of crock. On top, place a plastic bag filled with water to weigh down cabbage so juice comes up over cabbage. Fermentation will begin the day following the packing. Best product is made at 70 degrees room temperature. Remove film if there is any. When bubbling stops in 2-3 weeks, tap crock gently, if no bubbles rise it is finished. Pack into clean jars within one-inch from top. Cover with juice, if more juice is needed, combine 1 quart water with 1½ tablespoons salt. Wipe off jar rim. Adjust lids. Process in boiling water bath at 212 degrees for quarts at 30 minutes. Makes 15-18 quarts.

If you eat sauerkraut often, it will keep in crock all winter at room temperature 55 degrees or lower.

ANSWER — Thanks to Janet Burgenson, Middletown, Md., for answering Nina Biddle's question about why sugar cookies made with the same recipe but with a different brand of flour may taste differently. Janet writes that King Arthur flour is made from red Durham flour and is harder. It has a higher protein content than Gold Medal flour. The percentage isn't much but may be enough to change the texture and taste.

ANSWER — Sandra Smith requested a recipe for potato skin soup. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for sending one.

Potato Peel Soup

Wash 4-6 potatoes, depending on size. Scrub with a brush. Peel and add peelings to the soup stock immediately.

Soup Stock:

4 cups chicken broth
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup chopped onions
1 cup chopped celery
Salt and pepper to taste
Fresh dill, parsley, or desired herbs
Simmer broth, carrots, onions, and celery about 30 minutes or until tender. Add your choice of fresh herbs and salt and pepper. Add as much milk or half and half as needed.

ANSWER — Here are some dip recipes sent in by Holly Lutz, Jonestown, in request for dips.

Blueberry Brie

You can also make this with raspberry sauce or sun dried tomatoes, both of which taste excellent. This will cook in the microwave in about three minutes. Serve with warm French baguette slices.

2.2 pound wheel Brie cheese

A Peek At Farm Show Exhibiting

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent
BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Samantha Adams, daughter of Kathy and Sam Adams of U.S. Route 220, Bedford, was one of the more than 20 Bedford County Farm Show participants.

For Samantha, it was a first time experience, and one she had been looking forward to all year.

Lucky enough to live near 4-H leader Ada Myers, and drawing on the experience of the whole sheep and goat raising Myers family, has sparked Samantha's interest from the start of her animal showing experiences.

With three goats and two lambs of her own, Samantha has participated in the Bedford Fair as well as Jackpot shows at Somerset, Indiana, and Bedford counties.

In 2001, Samantha took first place in showmanship and fitting with her goat and first place in showmanship with her lamb at the Bedford Fair.

She also showed the reserve champion goat that year.

This year she planned to show both her goat, Vanilla, and her lamb, Hercules, at the Farm Show. However, one week before the Farm Show, Vanilla lost all of his milk teeth which disqualified it.

Hercules came home with a third place. Samantha showed goats for Scott Myers at the Farm Show and brought him two fifth places.

The third place with the sheep also gave her a showmanship trophy.

"I had fun," said Samantha. "I was happy with what I did, and can't wait to go back next year."

Samantha and her brother Derrick are both 4-H members with the Farming Around Club.

A fifth grader at Bedford Elementary, Samantha does all of the evening feedings of her animals and takes over both feedings on weekends. She spends several hours every week practicing showmanship. During summer seasons, she devotes even more hours to her farm and animal chores.

When she is not raising animals, Samantha likes to sew, play soccer, and ski. She is a participant in the Odyssey of the Mind and a member of the Burning Bush United Methodist Church.

Hercules, Samantha Adams's lamb, came home from the Pennsylvania Farm Show with a third-place win.

Bill Cuculis gets son William Jr., one year old, off to an early start in learning the art of fitting cattle for the show ring. Sons Luke, 13, and Mitch, 11, also showed purebred Angus during the Farm Show. The Cuculis family operates Family First Farm, Seven Valleys.

FFA Students Team Up For Dirt Demo

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Students from the Mifflinburg Area High School gave Farm Show visitors something to look forward to recently.

Four members of the High School FFA Chapter helped gear up for spring with a demonstration on "Landscaping Your Home."

The four students, well versed in their presentation, showed spectators a step-by-step example of how to beautify their lawn.

The most important thing to remember when you begin a landscaping project is to have a specified plan, according to the students. A homeowner needs to make sure that the trees, shrubbery, and plants are appropriate for the soil type and are compatible amongst each other. Other considerations include root depth, aesthetic purposes, and wildlife attractions.

The next step in landscaping your home is to remove the grass and roots from the area you wish to plant in. A daunting task, this is crucial for preventing grass and weeds from taking over plants later on. Additionally, it is important to apply mulch and till the soil, breaking apart any large clumps of dirt.

Next, the students demonstrated the art of laying landscape fabric. This durable material is available in most home and garden stores and allows the homeowner to cut holes in the material, where plants can later be inserted into the ground. This manufactured material is ideal for preventing unwanted growth around your intact plants. Following this preparation, the artistic element of landscape takes place as plants are arranged and mulched, according to the personal preference of the landscaper.

Finally, Mifflinburg FFA students proved the extent of their knowledge by demonstrating a mock irrigation system installation. This becomes increasingly important during dry seasons, or for the homeowner who doesn't have time to water plants manually every day. The attractiveness of the irrigated landscape can still be maintained with simple mulch coverings.

The landscaping demonstration was conducted in conjunction with the 87th Pennsylvania Farm Show Jan. 11-18 at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex.

Ida's Notebook

by
Ida Risser

January is almost over and I have not started my usual winter activities. It seems that there are so many problems to solve each day.

What do we do when someone drives their truck through our meadow and rips up the grass?

What do we do when doctors disagree on treatment for Allen's ailment?

What do we do when the Fish and Boat Commission intends to rip out a dam near our home in order that shad can go upstream to spawn? This would definitely affect us.

Last week we had three doctors' appointments in two days. We surely know what it is to sit by the hour in a doctor's office and wait. Of course, many other people wait with us. We get told to take one day at a time and things will take care of themselves. But, that is easier said than done. Thus the days pass by and leave us in a dither.

On one of our trips to town we stopped at a restaurant for a meal. Our daughter had given us a coupon, and so we used it. We certainly can eat at home for a lot less money. But, occasionally we do like to put our feet under someone else's table.

We've had a few visitors recently and that makes the days pass more quickly. Some are friends we've had for years while others are new friends from far away. It is comforting to know that others are thinking of us.

Now I must go and clean our garage as some animal gets in through the pet door at nighttime. Whatever it is has upset all the birdseed bags, the newspaper pile, the fishing rods and many other things. What could it be?

Cheesy Party Facts

Warm melted cheese recipes — from dips to quesadillas — are a sure way to score points with guests at sports parties. In fact, more than 363 million pounds of cheese were sold in 2002 in the weeks between Super Bowl and March Madness, and 54.5 million pounds were sold during Super Bowl week alone.

Just in time for the big game, here are some reasons to entertain with cheese this winter:

- Nearly seven in 10 Americans (65 percent) say melted cheese makes them feel satisfied.

Nothing satisfies hungry fans more than a baked potato bar with all the fixings. Invite guests to top potatoes with grated Asiago, Cheddar or crumbled Blue and microwave until hot and bubbly. Try miniature new potatoes for a bite-sized treat.

- More than eight in 10 Americans (85 percent) use cheese always or often when entertaining.

Have a hearty snack handy when hungry fans get a break from the action. Tortilla chips topped with your favorite melted cheese will warm them up just in time for the second half.

- Americans say pizza (26 percent) and cheese dip (47 percent) are their favorite melted cheese recipes in general and for entertaining.

Every team has its MVP — party fare is no different! Topped with melted Mozzarella, smooth Provolone and smoked Gouda, Cheesy Pull-Apart Party Sticks are a delicious homemade alternative to pizza. Or, bowl guests over with Big Bowl Cheese Dip, a combo of tangy Cheddar and spicy Pepper Jack, taco seasoning and chipotle peppers. Like it hotter? Add a dash of Tabasco for intense flavor.

- "Super Bowl Sunday is ranked as the number two food consumption event of the year; second only to Thanksgiving, according to the American Institute of Food Distribution."

Celebrate a big win with a plate of spicy quesadillas. Tortillas filled with zesty Jalapeno Jack, mild Colby and your favorite mix of veggie make for winning finger food.

'Dressing' Millstones Demonstrates Early American Craftsmanship

CHESTER SPRINGS (Chester Co.) — Stone dressing is a rare and dying craft but during America's early history, grist mills depended on skilled artisans to "dress" or sharpen massive millstones used to grind grain into flour.

Ron Grassi, one of only a handful of artisans left in the United States, recently demonstrated stone dressing at Chester County's Mill at Anselma.

During the demonstration, Grassi a miller at the Hanford Mills Museum located in East Meredith, N.Y., checked the levels of bedstone using a traditional "painter's stick." He painted the stick with red paint and rubbed it across the millstone to determine where the stone was higher in places than others. Then he chiseled the stone to the desired level. One of the millstones Grassi sharpened weighed 3,200-pounds.

The mill's massive wooden gearing, grain elevators, and other historic machinery is under restoration. The restoration is funded by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, the William Penn Foundation, the Save America's Treasures Program and West Pikeland Township.

The Mill at Anselma (c. 1747) is considered the most complete example of an intact Colonial grist mill in the United States, and retains three centuries of flour milling technology.

When the restoration project is completed in the fall of this year, water will flow and the mill's waterwheel and millstones will again turn, offering fun and educational demonstrations for the enjoyment of families, visitors, and scholars.

The Mill at Anselma is located on Route 401, ½ mile west of Route 113 in Chester Springs.

Tours are available by appointment. The mill will reopen Saturdays in April. For more information, call The Mill at Anselma Preservation and Educational Trust at (610) 917-0447. Or e-mail hpreiffer@anselmamill.org or visit the web site www.anselmamill.org.

Rob Grassi, the miller and stone dresser from Hanford Mills Museum, "dresses" or sharpens one of the 3,200-pound mill stones at the Mill at Anselma by cutting thin lines into the stone.

At left, Ron Grassi checks the levels of bedstone using a traditional "painter's stick." The stone dresser paints the stick with red paint and rubs it across the millstone to determine where the stone is higher in places than others. Then he chisels the stone to the desired level.

Antique Equipment Attracts Farm Show Visitors

Not all the machinery displayed at the Pennsylvania Farm Show was new or available for purchase. Some such as a 1934 Model D motorized plow garden tractor attracted admirers. Gravely collectors admiring a 1934 Model D motorized plow garden tractor, from left, include Glenn and Jolene Murdock, West Chester; Jim Brackin, Delaware; and Richard Seyfert, Lebanon. "Brilliant" is a word Murdock and other collectors used when describing Ben Gravely who patented the model in 1916 and opened a factory in 1922 in Dunbar, West Virginia. Murdock and his wife own 47 Gravely models that they display at antique and equipment shows.

Fine antiques, primitive country, and fifties modern decor are expected to be displayed at the Lehigh Valley Big Flea Market at the new Pennsylvania Expo Center, Allentown, Feb. 1-2. This is the first time D'Amore has scheduled a show in the Lehigh Valley area. The Pennsylvania Expo center is located with easy access to Routes 476 and 78. the $5 admission fee is good for both days. The show will open Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. For questions about the Lehigh Valley show or other D'Amore events, call (757) 430-4735.

Fast Talkers Raise Money For Good Causes: Bid Calling Contest Winners Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Auctioneers pitted their talents against each other in a bid-calling contest held at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex Jan. 15. The Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association sponsored the contest.

Brent Souder of Hatfield, Montgomery County, nabbed First Place Auctioneer. Second place went to Philip Hurst of Newmanstown, Lebanon County. David Conley of York, York County, took third place.

Contestants were judged on speech and bid calling ability, salesmanship, microphone ability, and appearance. Each auctioneer was given a warm-up round. All the contestants were required to sell two items consecutively and were given a maximum of three minutes to do so. Ten finalists were selected and were required to again sell two items consecutively.

Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes congratulated the contestants and urged the audience to bid generously on items that were being auctioned off for the Farm Show Scholarship Fund. In addition to the scholarship fund, some of the proceeds benefited St. Jude's Children's Hospital, as well as the Pennsylvania Auctioneer's Association.

Some of the items offered for bid included Ertl Collectibles, an antique copper wash boiler, antique printer's trays, and a unique lacquered chest, as well as many other antiques and collectibles. One box of prize winning apples was sold three times, due to the generosity of the bidders allowing them to be sold again to raise more money. The final buyer passed the apples out to the crowd, so all could share.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

Japanese Cabinetry Simply Beautiful

Collectors are beginning to appreciate the clean lines and hand-forged iron hardware that defines 18th and 19th century Japanese cabinetry. More familiar is the gaudy, laquer studded with mother-of-pearl, made for export. However there are also beautiful examples of the Japanese mastery of laquer dating to the early 18th century that sell for thousands of dollars. With the revived interest in Modernism the Tansu chests of Japan are right at home. Compared to Chinese furniture and laquered Japanese chests they are modestly priced. When they come to auction, quality pieces can sell for as little as $2,000 to $4,000.

The history of Japanese cabinetry is beautifully presented in "Japanese Cabinetry-The Art and Craft of Tansu" by David Jackson and Dane Owen, published by Gibbs-Smith.

It gives examples of what begins as a simple box and takes on many forms. No Western influences, no Chippendale or Louis XV curves or embellishments. The austerity is relieved by the sculptured look of the hand-forged iron lockplates and hinges, turning function into design.

A man's clothing chest with ornate embossed and incised floral hardware. Meiji period (1868-1912). Photo credit: Tokyo Museum.

There are many types of Tansu, each with a special purpose and Japanese name. This includes spaces for clothing, linens, medicines, and business supplies.

Basically there are boxes whose interiors are fitted for a variety of uses. They were generally not used as interior furnishings the way we use them. Exceptions were the step-chest, kitchen cupboard, tea chest and storage cupboards.

CLUES: Any of these chests can be adapted to our contemporary lifestyles. A good example would be the medicine chest with over a dozen small drawers. Another versatile piece would be the ships' chests made to fit the small cabin spaces. Most elegant were those made for the land merchants with wiped laquer finishes and ornate iron hardware.

Not just the exteriors were important but the interiors with myriads of secret compartments. Their purpose was to protect the contents from pirates or thieves.

The hardware had a sculptural look with raised animal and plant designs. One example shown in the book featured a tortoise, a symbol of good luck and prosperity. Another chest is completely covered on the front with floral hardware.

Some of the chests had more than one function, such as a merchant writing box and coin box. The rolling trunk or chest was used in the cities where fires were common. Important documents and clothing could be rolled to safety.

As the townspeople became more educated in the Edo period (1615-1868), book chests were made. The doors could be removed for displays.

Patina is important since it aids in authenticating age. Problems come when the hand-forged iron has been replaced with sheet metal. Don't pay too much for a piece that has too many interior wood replacements.

If you like the look, perhaps you are wondering how to adapt them to your arts and crafts or even Victorian house. The book examples make you want to run to the nearest dealer. Ever wonder where the name "futon" came from? It was a bedding chest that could measure up to 9-feet wide and 30-inches deep...perfect for an entertainment center. Some smaller "futons" with sliding doors are a good place for a television or DVD player. A tea chest can add interest to an entry way.

The hibachis that we use to grill appetizers are a world apart from the beautiful wood and iron fireboxes used in Japanese homes. They had dovetail joinery and were copper lined. These days they make handsome planters.

A list of dealers is provided in the book.

See us for all your spreader needs.

NEW HOLLAND

Small spreader hauls 161 bushels

The New Holland Model 130 box spreader does a lot of work for its size, because it has the same built-in toughness of the larger models.

- Corrosion-resistant steel sides, heavy-duty plastic floor planks - backed by 12-Year Bonded Protection
- T-rod apron chains require less adjustment, allow better cleanout
- Sturdy A-frame hitch pulls from far under the spreader

Huge capacity, fewer trips

New Holland's Model 3118 side-delivery spreader with side rails holds a huge 3,118 gallons of material. You'll make fewer trips and get the job done much sooner. It's perfect for large commercial and municipal operations.

- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast
- Heavy-duty round-core auger produces less drag
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control

When you need a big spreader, see us for the Model 3118.

Northeast Forest Landowners Conference Planned For March

NANTICOKE (Luzerne Co.) — Forests cover nearly 60 percent of Pennsylvania's 28 million acres. The 17 million acres of forestland support wildlife habitat and provide places to enjoy nature, help protect water supplies, and help remove carbon dioxide — a greenhouse gas — from the air.

Additionally, timber and forest products are the fourth largest manufacturing industry in Pennsylvania. The industry employs 90,000 workers in 2,500 firms and contributes almost 5 billion dollars to the state's economy.

Approximately 13 million acres of the state's forests are privately owned by more than 600,000 landowners. Sustaining Pennsylvania's forests depends on the management they receive from landowners.

On Saturday, March 1, the fourth annual Northeast Pennsylvania Forest Landowners Conference will be held at the Luzerne County Community College Conference Center in Nanticoke, Pennsylvania.

The day will begin with a message from Dr. Jim Grace, Pennsylvania State Forester with DCNR sharing his views on sustainable forestry in the Commonwealth.

Other presenters from the Bureau of Forestry and USDA Forest Service will discuss forest health, timber tax issues, the Clean and Green Act, forest landowner assistance program, and the Forest Legacy Program. Other topics include a Pennsylvania Game Commission program called DMAP, a program to help landowners manage deer; a panel discussion of Forest Stewards; and techniques to enhance wildlife habitat.

This landowner conference was developed through a partnership of DCNR Bureau of Forestry, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Penn State School of Forest Resources, USDA Forest Service, Pocono Northeast Resource Conservation & Development, Pennsylvania Environmental Council, and the North Branch Land Trust.

The conference is scheduled for Saturday March 1 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Luzerne County Community College Conference Center in Nanticoke, Pennsylvania.

The conference fee that will cover the cost of lunch, breaks and materials is $20 for participants and $15 for one guest with each full registration. Pre-registration for this conference is required. For more information, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension at 570-825-1701 or your local DCNR Bureau of Forestry office.

DEP, Bradford Co. Conservation District Plan Watershed Meeting

TROY (Bradford Co.) — Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Regional Director Robert Yowell is inviting citizens to attend an informational meeting on February 11 about the Mill Creek Watershed project in the Bradford-Tioga Watershed.

"Our previous meetings with stakeholders have identified various problems in the watershed," Yowell said. "We want to help all of our stakeholders understand these problems so we can work together effectively in addressing them as part of our Environmental Futures Planning Process."

The meeting will be from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. at the Troy Fire Hall on Firehouse Lane. Reservations are required by calling Sharon Steinbacher at (570) 327-3741 by January 28. Lunch is free.

The group also will discuss the environmental action plans developed by stakeholders last year for the Bradford-Tioga Watershed.

Guest speakers at the meeting will include Bradford County Conservation District Technician Jason Petlock, who will explain the Mill Creek Watershed project.

This project included a stream assessment, development of a Total Maximum Daily Load (TMDL), and implementation of agricultural best management practices and stream restoration work to properly address the causes of impairment at Stephen Foster Lake.

Biotech Crops Continue Rapid Global Growth

ITHACA, N.Y. — Biotechnology continues to be a growing choice among farmers worldwide as global acreage of crops enhanced through biotech increased by 12 percent, or 15 million acres in 2002, according to a new report released from the International Service for the Acquisition of Agri-biotech Applications (ISAAA).

For the sixth consecutive year, farmers worldwide adopted biotech crops at a double-digit pace, with 2002 global biotech acreage reaching 145 million acres. More than one-fifth of the global crop area of soybeans, corn, cotton, and canola acres are biotech.

About 6 million farmers in 16 countries chose to plant biotech crops in 2002, up from 5 million farmers in 13 countries in 2001. More than three-quarters of these farmers were resource-poor farmers in developing countries.

"This high adoption rate is a strong vote of confidence in biotech crops, reflecting farmers' need for and satisfaction with the technology," says Clive James, chairman and founder of ISAAA. "In many cases, growers are finding biotechnology offers the only viable solution to protect crops from economically devastating pests."

While biotech cotton maintained its global acreage of 16.8 million acres, biotech corn acreage grew 27 percent to 30.6 million acres, biotech canola acreage increased 11 percent to 7.4 million acres, and biotech soybean production grew 10 percent to 90.2 million acres, exceeding more than 50 percent of the global soybean crop area for the first time. In the U.S., biotech acreage grew by approximately 8.2 million acres, mainly because of significant increases in biotech corn and soybean acres.

The U.S., Argentina, Canada, and China continued to be the leading growers of biotech crops, with more than half of China's cotton crop being biotech for the first time. But other countries are starting to follow suit.

The report indicates more than one-quarter of the global biotech acreage was grown in developing countries in 2002. India, Colombia, and Honduras grew biotech crops for the first time. And, just last month, the Philippines approved a variety of biotech corn, making this one of the first biotech feed crops approved for planting in Asia. For the first time, more than half the world's population lives in countries where biotech crops are approved and grown.

"Biotechnology continues to be the most rapidly adopted technology in agricultural history due to the social and economic benefits the crops offer farmers and society, particularly the 5 million resource-poor farmers in developing countries," James said. "Biotech crops can significantly alter the lives of these farmers, limiting the time they must spend in the field and helping alleviate poverty."

The report suggests Bt cotton farmers are seeing these benefits. In China, farmers growing Bt cotton increased their income an additional $200 per acre or $750 million nationally. The study reports similar results in South Africa, where half of farmers are women. The reduced insecticide sprays required with Bt cotton allow the farmers more time to care for their families or generate additional income from other activities.

"We can attend to other things besides staying in the field," says T.J. Buthelezi, a cotton farmer from the Makhatini Flats of South Africa. "Our standard of living is very much improved when we have money to send our children to school."

The ISAAA study also reports biotech crops are contributing to a reduction in pesticide usage. According to the study, Bt cotton alone is estimated to eliminate the need for 33,000 tons of insecticide globally, or 40 percent of the current global use. In 2001, six biotech crops planted in the U.S. reduced pesticide use 23,000 tons.

The report projects continued near-term growth in global acreage of biotech crops and in the number of farmers who will use the technology. New biotech cotton and corn products are expected to be commercialized within the next few years as well, further increasing biotechnology's presence around the world. By 2005, the report predicts the global market value of biotech crops will reach $5 billion, up from approximately $4.25 billion in 2002 and $3.8 billion just a year before.

The International Service for the Acquisition of Agri-biotech Applications (ISAAA) is a not-for-profit organization with an international network of centers designed to contribute to the alleviation of hunger and poverty by sharing crop biotechnology applications. Clive James, chairman and founder of ISAAA, has lived and worked for the past 25 years in the developing countries of Asia, Latin America and Africa, devoting his efforts to agricultural research and development issues. Lately, his focus is crop biotechnology and global food security.

ISAAA publishes several reports on various aspects of crop biotechnology every year, including an annual Global Review for 2001 (ISAAA Brief No. 26) was published in December 2002. The report published today is a preview of 2002 global GM crop areas and will be supplemented by the customary comprehensive final report for 2002 toward the end of 2003.

Statistics published in ISAAA reports are based on a consolidated database from a broad range of sources, including government agencies and other organizations in the public and private sector. The figures published cover only plantings of GM crops in countries where the products have been officially approved.

"Preview Global Status of Commercialized Transgenic Crops: 2002," by Clive James, ISAAA Brief No. 27, can be obtained from ISAAA's Southeast Asia Center: e-mail publications@isaaa.org. Cost of the publication, ISAAA Brief No. 27, is U.S. $35, including postage. The publication is available free of charge to nationals of developing countries.

USDA Announces Crop Insurance Deadline For New Jersey

RALEIGH, N.C. — New Jersey farmers are reminded that the final date to apply for crop insurance on most spring-planted crops for the 2003 crop year is March 15 according to the Raleigh Regional Office, USDA Risk Management Agency.

Current policyholders likewise have until March 15 to make any changes to their existing contracts. Crop insurance provides protection against losses in crop production due to natural perils such as drought, hail, and excessive moisture.

Coverage is available for corn, soybeans, oats, processing beans, fresh market sweet corn, processing tomatoes, nursery products, and winter squash.

Crop Revenue Coverage (CRC) is also available for corn and soybeans providing additional protection against price declines at harvest time.

Insurance premium subsidies have been significantly increased in recent years, particularly at the higher levels of coverage.

Producers are strongly urged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for a premium quote and additional details.

For a list of crop insurance agents in your area, contact the local USDA Farm Service Agency office or log on to the following Risk Management Agency Website: <http://www3.nna.usda.gov/tools/agents/>.

Ultra Series

Trip Cutting Edge Design

The SnowWolf Ultra features a trip cutting edge design which allows full down pressure for incredible scraping ability in forward or backdragging situations. It eliminates "false tripping" from snow load and will only engage if you actually strike an immovable object

Massive Construction

The SnowWolf Ultra is designed to take abuse from the largest skid loaders. At approximately 100 pounds per foot of plowing width, you know the Ultra means business

Food for Thought

Did you know that a modern skid loader with a high speed transmission and a SnowWolf Ultra will outplow a pickup truck under most plowing conditions? A cleaner job, closer to the obstacles (without worrying about your fenders), and more acres plowed in the same amount of time!

FARM
EQUIPMENT*Want a smooth operating machine this spring?*Deer Creek Can Help!*Did you know?

- If 1 seed out of 12 is incorrectly planted, that represents 8% of your total crop. For a 150 bushel per acre crop, this represents 12 bushels lost per acre. Over 500 acres, this equals 6000 bushels that were lost.

Did you know?

- A planter travels 88 inches per second at 5 mph, or 3-1/2 inches in 1/25 of a second. If there were a delay of 1/25 of a second in the meter caused by poor maintenance or operation, the seed spacing would be off 3-1/2 inches.

Did you know?

- If you plant a double every 12 seeds, that represents over 8% of extra seed. If a bushel would plant 2-1/2 acres, the cost of the seed per acre would be $40 per acre at $100 per bushel. That 8% extra seed would then equal $3.20 wasted every acre costing you $1,600 for 500 acres.

Don't wait until it's too late...
Take care of your maintenance needs now!

It's a little early to think about planting corn but it's never too early to think about good planter maintenance.

Schedule an on-farm planter inspection from Deer Creek today...

Avoid having problems this spring...

It will make your planting more efficient and harvest more profitable!

FSA Advises DCP Deadline Approaching

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — Do you believe we are in 2003 already? Have you made your decisions concerning the New Farm Bill? Have you visited the Farm Service Agency (FSA) to start the enrolling process? Are you aware that this legislation affects farm program benefits through 2007? Did you know FSA is issuing advance payments for 2003 to enrolled producers? Did you know that your farm might be eligible for benefits for 2002 as soon as you enroll?

Good management is required to be a successful farmer under the conditions we are facing in agriculture today. The principals of management say we need to look at all the tools available to assure success. If you haven't started the process to enroll in the Direct and Counter Cyclical Payment Program you may be overlooking a very important tool.

April 1st is the first important deadline in the program. FSA encourages all farmers to visit the office for a program review prior to this deadline. In many cases growers will need to make more than one visit prior to the deadline. April is fast approaching and the time to get busy in the fields will be here before you know it. Take steps now to assure 2003 will be a successful year, visit FSA today.

"The Best"

1 Valspar 10S Finish Coat

2 Epoxy Primer

3 Zinc Phosphate

Pretreatment

4 G-100 Zinc Coating

5 Full Hard Steel

(80,000 min yield)

6 Heat formed, less paint cracks

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

- One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
- Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
- Zinc phosphate pretreatment. This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
- G-100 Galvanized. Most metal roofing has approx. 40% less galvanized under the paint. G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
- Full Hard. Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc.
- Heat formed. Metal is painted before ribs are formed. Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
- Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L.F.
- Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53.37 Per Square $1.69 Per L.F.

What's heat forming?

In metal roofing and siding it's the best way to go! Here is why. Everlast heats the paint very hot on their Everlast II product before they cut and form it into roofing and siding. Tests have proven that heating paint before cutting and bending prevents virtually all microscopic cracks in the paint. Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important. Normally manufacturers form and cut at room temperature. Unfortunately that cracks the paint causing early rust at formed bends and edges.

Log Cabin Farm
Catalog Plus

Comes in 1 gallon and 35 lb. containers
Feed at least 1 oz. per 500 lb. of weight per day

Owners of bred mares: feed Best Bloom to give your foals a jump-start on life

Horse Farmers: feed Best Bloom to help your work teams shed out winter hair and be energized for heavy Spring work

Horse owners in general: you will love!! the shine this product puts on your horse

Many care providers are tempted to overfeed proteins and minerals. The feeding program that provides a 10-12% protein from grain and a good green hay that is free of dust or mold is adequate in most cases. Most operations will benefit greatly from using this product as an addition to an already good feeding program. It will provide the extra bloom that makes horsekeeping so rewarding.

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased."

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

Meet The Purina 'Calf Lady'

Well-Traveled Calf Specialist Brings Lessons Home

Becky May is the new Purina Calf Specialist for the Northeast.

Becky May wants farmers to know she's always available to meet their calf-growing needs

"I tell farmers to go ahead and call me anytime," said the new Purina Mills calf specialist for the Northeast. "I try to be as available to calf and heifer growers as I can be. It's not a normal 9 to 5 job, but agriculture isn't either."

Becky should know. She grew up on Little Pine Farm, a dairy in Morrison's Cove, Bedford County. Her parents Rod and Cathy Carson manage a 130-cow herd there.

She earned a Penn State degree in Marketing and Management while working parttime on the farm, handling tasks such as bookkeeping, payroll and feed pricing.

While maintaining lifelong ties to the family dairy farm, Becky will pursue her new job of "becoming the Northeast Purina expert on calf-raising." Her territory includes Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey.

In preparation for her position as premier calf consultant in the Northeast, Becky traveled this summer to various states to "learn what it is like to raise calves in different parts of the country and what the producers in those areas are facing," she said.

States she visited include Georgia, Texas, New Mexico, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Michigan. She has future plans to see dairy operations in Minnesota, Florida, and Washington State.

"It's a good way to meet calf and heifer growers and get different ideas for running the business," she said. "It's interesting to see the different protocols for raising calves — anything from health standards, to how and when they pick up the calves, to how they bill."

"I got a chance to feed 800 calves with the calf manager in a large herd in New Mexico. It is experiences like this in which you can really learn what these people are facing, and then bring that back home and use those experiences for new ideas and ways of thinking."

Becky's responsibilities at Purina include working directly with the sales team, farm consultants, and dealers who are servicing calf and heifer grower concerns in the region; conducting calf-feeding trials; updating representatives and customers on new calf concerns; and working with 4-H and FFA youth to promote good calf-raising practices.

She also plans to become certified in the near future to perform Professional Dairy Heifer Growth Association walk-throughs on calf operations.

Becky's mission is to help dairy producers gain efficiency and performance while maintaining and enhancing heifer health. Tools she uses to accomplish this include least-cost ration balancing, walk-through evaluations, record evaluations, business planning, and trouble shooting.

Becky is looking forward to providing calf growers with the best possible service. If you have any calf concerns or want to schedule a walk-through for your calf operation, give her a call at (717) 737-4581 ext. 288 or 278.
